REPORT

TO

The Right Honourable SPENCER HORATIO WALPOLE, M.P., Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Home Department, &c. &c. &c.

General Register Office, Somerset House,
25th June 1867.

SIR,

I HAVE the honour to submit to you my Annual Report. It relates to the marriages, births, and deaths that were registered in England and Wales in the year 1865.

The population could almost count 21,000,000 persons; for the amount, as estimated for the middle of that year, is 20,990,946. In a quarter of a century the population had added 5,000,000 to its strength.

The number of persons married in the year was 370,948; of children born alive 748,069; of persons who died in the year 490,909. In a quarter of a century the annual number of marriages has increased from 122,496 to 185,474, showing an increase in that period of 51 per cent. ; the annual number of births from 512,158 to 748,069, being an increase of 46 per cent. ; that of deaths has increased from 343,847 to 490,909 in 1865, which represents an increase in the deaths of that year on those of 1841 equal to 43 per cent.

* The Population of each of the years since 1851 is deduced from the ascertained rate of increase observed in the twenty years, 1841-61; and an allowance is made for the decrease in the rate during the latter ten years. On another hypothesis the numbers would differ slightly from the estimate here given, but as the rates of births, deaths, and marriages have been calculated on these numbers it is not considered advisable to give any other estimate of Population.

The number of emigrants of English origin who left their native soil in 1865 was upwards of 61,000, out of a total emigration from the United Kingdom in the same year of 209,801 persons.

Marriages.

185,474 men and 185,474 women married during the year according to the returns ; and in England all marriages are registered. The number has increased since the Registration Act came into operation from 118,067 in 1838 to 185,474 in the year 1865, and the increase of marriages in the 27 years is more rapid than the increase of population. In the year 1838 the proportion of marriages to the population was 771, in 1865 the proportion was 884 ; as each marriage represents two persons, the proportion of persons married to the same population in the two years at an interval of 27 years was 1542 and 1768. Thus, if out of 910 persons 7 marriages arose in 1838, the same number of persons contracted 8 marriages in 1865.

The marriages, according to the rites of the Church of England, recorded in the parish registers were 113,123 in the year 1838, and 145,104 in the year 1865 ; thus they increased largely ; while the marriages at other places of worship and in superintendent registrars' offices rose from 4,944 to 40,370. The increase of marriages, according to rites of the established church, was 31,981; and the increase of marriages in places foreign to the jurisdiction of the national church, and formerly unauthorized, except in the case of Jews and Quakers, was 35,426; the two increments making up an increase of 67,407 in 27 years.

The marriage rate was higher than it was in any of the previous 27 years, except in the year 1853 when one person in 56 married, while in 1865 one in 57 married; in 1842 only one in 68 persons married, and that is the lowest proportion in the same period. Thus the extreme range of the marriage rate in 28 years is from one in 68 to one in 56; from 1·474 per cent. to 1·788 per cent. of the population.

Of the 145,104 marriages according to the rites of the established church, it is recorded that 23 were by special licence, which permits "marriage "at any time in any church or chapel, or other meet and convenient place."* The Archbishop of Canterbury and his officers now exercise this dispensing power, which was formerly, with powers still more extensive, in the hands of the Pope; the fee on each special licence amounting to about 30 guineas. By licence 20,722, after banns 116,745, and by superintendent registrar's certificate 4,170 marriages are stated to have been performed in the established churches; in 3,444 instances the clergymen have not entered the particular procedure.

* Disregarding the decimal point, this will read: — 804 marriages were celebrated to every 100,000 of the population; of these, 910 may be taken to represent the marriages of the higher and middle classes, and 787 those of the classes below.

* See Registrar General's Twenty-seventh Report, page x.

Of the 40,370 marriages by other forms 8,742 were contracted in places registered by Roman Catholics, 16,429 in places registered by Protestant Dissenters, and 14,792 in superintendent registrars' offices; 54 marriages were contracted by Quakers and 353 by Jews. The marriages of Quakers are declining; the marriages of Jews are increasing rapidly. In 1841 the marriages of Jews numbered 113, in 1865 they amounted to more than three times as many. The marriages of Protestant Dissenters are still increasing, so are the marriages in superintendent registrars' offices.

It may be of interest to mention that there is a complete series of Returns of English marriages from the year 1755 down to the present day; and it appears (1) that on an average of the 5 years, of which 1758 is the middle year, 52,666 men and the same number of women married annually; (2) that on an average of the 5 years, of which 1791 is the middle year, 72,347 men and as many women married annually; (3) that in the 5 years, of which 1824 is the middle, 104,180 men and the same number of women married; while (4) in the 5 years 1855–9 the marriages rose to 158,868. Taking these intervals of 33 years to represent the intervals between the marriages of successive generations it will be noticed, that the numbers run in such proportions that each couple married in the first generation left two couples of marrying grandchildren and three couples of marrying great-grandchildren. Thus 52,666 fathers left to marry 72,347 sons, 104,180 grandsons, and 158,868 great-grandsons, consequently the great-grandfathers were only equal in number to one-third part of the number of their direct male descendants in the third degree. This happens only in increasing populations, and it is probable that in the four generations preceding the year 1756 no such inequality existed. An increase of population implies a profound social modification.

The Eighth Report contains an elaborate investigation of the whole series of marriage returns down to the year 1845, and it is there shown that marriages in the mass fluctuate with the prosperity of the country.

* The proportion of Widowers and Widows in the Year 1841 is for the September and December quarters only.

This is confirmed by the subsequent records; and I have shown that there is a general rule to this effect, that the proportion of marriages to population is least when the prices of wheat are high, greatest when the prices of the same necessary of life are low. This rule is based on observations now extending in England over 25 years. The rule is reversed in the case of marriages by licence, which are rather more frequent in years when the prices of wheat are high. The facts are curious, and may be studied in Table 4. It is evident that the lower classes are most affected by the fluctuations of trade and of the prices of common articles of consumption; and that to certain classes high prices are beneficial.

The proportion of marriages to population in England and Scotland for the last year of the Scottish Reports is shown in the subjoined Table.

Buildings registered for Marriages.—5352 buildings were on the list; namely, 1626 belonging to Independents, 1129 to Baptists, 1216 to Wesleyan Methodists, including 629 of the original connexion, 203 Primitive Methodists, and a considerable number of the Wesleyan Methodist Free Church.

129 buildings are certified under other denominations, scattered about the country, but found chiefly in London, Devon, Somerset, and Lancaster.

* Marriages can be contracted without registration in Scotland in the ways below enumerated, and without the intervention of any religious ceremony :—

1. By a promise of marriage given in writing, or proved by a reference to the oath of the party, followed by a copula.

2. By a solemn and deliberate mutual declaration exchanged between a man and a woman, either verbally or in writing, expressed per verba de præsenti, bearing that the parties consent to take each other for husband and wife, a marriage may be formed without any copula cohabitation, or celebration in facie ecclesiæ. Such mutual declaration of consent, whether oral or written, and however expressed, must unequivocally import immediate consent to hold each other henceforth as man and wife. But as consent is the essence of the contract, it must be real. Words uttered in jest, or with a different object, cannot, whatever their literal signification, be obligatory.

3. Marriage may be established by public cohabitation as man and wife alone.—Shelford on the Law of Marriage, p. 91.

Irregular Marriages are registered under the 48th section of 17 & 18 Vict. c. 80. :—

"In the event of any persons being convicted before any justice of the peace or magistrate of having irregularly contracted a marriage, it shall be lawful for either of the parties to such irregular marriage, and they are severally hereby required to register such marriage in the parish in which such convictions shall have taken place; and in case of any marriage being established by a decree of declarator of any competent court, it shall be lawful for either of the parties to the action in which such decree was pronounced to register such marriage in the parish of the domicile of such parties or the parish of their usual residence; and the production to the Registrar of an extract of such conviction or decree of declarator shall be sufficient evidence and warrant for the registration of such marriages, on payment to the Registrar of a fee of twenty shillings."

Certified Places of Worship.—The Toleration Act of 1688* gave Protestants freedom of meeting for religious worship at certified places; in 1791 the same advantages were extended to Roman Catholics*; in 1812 it was enacted that no Protestant congregation of more than 20 persons should meet unless the place of meeting had been certified to the bishop, archdeacon, or the quarter sessions; and in 1852 the certificates were directed to be sent to the Registrar-General. The Act 18 & 19 Vict., c. 81, only enacts that "all places of religious worship, not being churches or "chapels of the Established Church, should, if the congregation should "desire, but not otherwise, be certified to the Registrar-General." Thus the certification is no longer indispensable, and the intolerant restrictions on religious worship are now entirely abolished in England.

Certain legal advantages attach to the registration of places of religious worship, for it places them under the especial protection of the law; and it is indispensable to the solemnization of any marriages, except those in Established Churches or in Register Offices.

A return was procured by this office of all the places that had ever been certified since the passing of the Toleration Act in 1688 to 30th June 1852, so far as existing documents supplied the information; and from that return it appeared that 54,804 places had been certified in the 164 years. In the first years, down to the end of 1690, 939 places were certified; 143 as permanent, 796 as temporary buildings. Of these 239 belonged to Quakers, 108 permanent and 131 temporary buildings. The places of

The registration clause of the Toleration Act, 1688, (1 William and Mary, cap. 18. sect. 19,) runs thus: "Provided always, "that no congregation or assembly for religious worship shall be permitted or allowed by "this Act, until the place of such meeting shall be certified to the bishop of the diocese, "or to the archdeacon of that archdeaconry, or to the justices of the peace at the general "or quarter sessions of the peace for the county, city, or place in which such meeting "shall be held and registered in the said bishop's or archdeacon's court respectively, or "recorded at the said general or quarter sessions; the registrar or clerk of the peace "whereof respectively is hereby required to register the same, and to give certificate "thereof to such person as shall demand the same, for which there shall be no greater "fee nor reward taken than the sum of sixpence."

Wesleyan Methodists first appear in 1741–50 in small numbers and as temporary buildings; but increase rapidly in 1791–1800, and then go on until their numbers in the end amount to 3901, of which 2035 were chapels or permanent structures. The other buildings are registered chiefly as belonging to Protestant Dissenters, consisting no doubt of Presbyterians (including Unitarians), Independents, and Baptists. Of 13,950 the particular denomination is not specified.

The following summary table gives the principal results :—

There appears to have been no means of striking any of the 54,804 certified places off the record; but great numbers of them disappeared in the progress of time; and at the census of 1851 returns as to accommodation and attendance were obtained from 20,400 places of worship then existing and not belonging to the Established Church of England; 17,000 were returned as separate buildings. Of these separate buildings only 3228 were on the marriage registers of 31st December of that year.* The number on the marriage register on the last day of the year 1865 was 5352; and at that date 16,819 places were on the register of places for religious worship. The Quakers and Jews are not required to register their places of worship as such.

Many places of worship belonging to both Roman Catholics and Protestants are certified under the old Acts, and are not on the list of the Registrar-General as such. Every dissenting place of worship at which marriages can be solemnized is published in the official list as corrected to the first day of every year.

Minors.—Not only the numbers but the proportions of both sexes, who marry under 21 years of age, have increased nearly every year since 1841. Thus out of 100 men married in 1841 only 4·38 were minors, in 1865 the proportion rose to 6·69; the number of women under age rose in the proportion of 13·29 to 20·08.

The fact that there has arisen in the community an increase in the proportion of young mothers is evident; but it does not follow that the disposition of young people to marry has increased precisely to the same extent; for the same effect would be produced, if the disposition remaining invariable—the proportion of young people at ages 15–21 had increased faster than the people marrying at the ages of 21 and upwards. That will however only account for a small part of the actual increase.

Signature of Marriage Registers.—After a marriage is registered the bride and bridegroom are required to sign the book. Both bride and bridegroom in 112,198 marriages wrote their names; both bride and bridegroom in 26,216 couples made their marks; while in 47,060 instances either the bride or the bridegroom signed with a mark, the men in 15,448, the women in 31,612 instances. Thus in the year of 370,948 persons married, 271,456 persons wrote their names, and 99,492 made their marks! 41,664 of the fathers, 57,828 of the mothers of the next generation cannot write their names, or write so imperfectly that they did not sign in writing a document so important as their marriage register.

The proportion of brides who signed with marks was 31 in 100; of bridegrooms 23. Dark as this picture is we have only to go back to 1841, nine years after the Reform of Parliament, to find a state of still greater ignorance.

The degree of ignorance of the elementary art of writing differs in every county; but it is by no means greater in the agricultural than it is in manufacturing counties; and it is quite clear that some much more effectual measures are required to raise the young generation from that darkness in which their fathers were allowed to exist, in spite of the example of the success and excellent results of the schools on the Scotch system.

The Table may be read thus by omitting the decimal points:—In England, among every 100,000 persons living 884 marriages took place; of 1,000 men married 775, of 1,000 women 688, signed the marriage register by writing their names; of 10,000 men married 669 were not of full age, of 10,000 women married 2008 were not of full age; of 10,000 men married 1393 were Widowers, of the same number of women married 924 were Widows.

Births to Marriages.—The proportion of children born in 1865 to the average marriages of 1858–59–60 was 4·260. The reason for comparing the births of the year with the marriages six years earlier is stated in my last Report.

Births.

There were born in the year 748,069 children, exclusive of the still-born, a class who are not required to be registered. In 1864 the number was 740,275. On the sustained activity of the birth-rate the increase of population, the strength and vital energy of the nation, depend; and the almost constant progression within the last quarter of a century in the annual numbers of births, advancing as the population advances, must be regarded with interest. Previously to 1840 the annual registration showed less than 500,000. At the close of the decade following that year the yearly number almost touched 600,000. In the years 1851–61 the ascent was for the most part continuous, till the annual births nearly reached 700,000; and at the present time they make no halt in their onward march to 800,000. The effect of the birth supply on the population is heightened by sanitary measures that reduce the mortality; and by such internal prosperity as induces it to stay at home rather than seek new abodes in America or the colonies.

In the year 1865 the excess of births over deaths was 257,160. This excess, representing natural increase of population, is in constant fluctuation: it was greatest in 1862 when it was 276,118.

vious year. The birth-rate has been remarkably high in recent years, and since 1861 has not been below 3·500.

During the three years 1863–4–5 the number of persons living to a birth has been 28. The average derived from the entire period of registration is 30; but there is reasonable ground to believe that in respect to births the working of the Act has gradually improved as the experience of its officers has increased, and the great body of the people has become better acquainted with its requirements.

The birth-rate in 1865 was even lower than usual in the extra-metropolitan portion of Surrey, where it was 2·131 per cent. (against an average of 2·995). There are numerous institutions in Surrey which swell the population without yielding a corresponding tribute of births. In Berkshire the birth-rate was not much higher. In Northamptonshire, Bedfordshire, Cheshire, and Leicestershire it rose or nearly rose to 3·700; in Lancashire to 3·726; and in Northumberland to 3·763; in Monmouthshire to 3·823; in the West Riding of Yorkshire to 3·985; in the busy populations of Staffordshire and Durham it was above 4·100 per cent.

Sex.—Of the 748,069 children born 381,444 were boys, 366,625 were girls. The males have a majority at birth, though in the population as constituted at the present time they are a minority. For every 100 girls born there were 104 births of boys. But this proportion of males did not hold everywhere: in some counties it was higher, as in Northamptonshire and Bedfordshire, where it rose to 108, and Cumberland where it was 109. Hertfordshire amongst counties furnished the solitary exception of a male minority, the boys born there having been 99·8 to 100 girls.

Seasons.—In the terms that have been adopted as most convenient in these Tables, the first quarter of the year (ending March 31st) is designated the Winter, the second (ending June 30th) Spring, the third (ending September 30th) Summer, the fourth Autumn. If the numbers of births are distinguished by the quarters in which they are registered, it is found that as a rule they increase in the winter and afterwards decline in the three following quarters, reaching their minimum in autumn. They are uniformly higher in the earlier half of the year than in the later half; but in the shorter quarterly periods they are less observant of a definite law of rise and fall. It sometimes happens that they increase from

Deaths.

The number of deaths registered in England and Wales in 1865 was 490,909, exclusive of the deaths of still-born children. In the previous year the number was 495,531. In the first year of the decade, 1856-65, the deaths were fewer by 100,000 than they were in the last year of that term.

The annual rate of mortality in 1865 was 2·339 per cent.; in the preceeding year 2·386. In the healthy year 1856 the rate was 2·051. The average for ten years 2·217.

The temperature in each of the two years, 1864–65, and rainfall, constitute their distinctive meteorological features. The former year was cold in all its four seasons, and its mean temperature at Greenwich was 48·5°. That of 1865 was 50·3°, and while the first or winter quarter was singularly cold, the subsequent three quarters were warm. The mean temperature of the winter of 1865 was 36·5°, which is 3·2° below the average, and it was lower than that of any previous winter in sixteen years, except 1855, when it was 34·1°. The rain-fall at Greenwich in 1865 was 26·3 in., the average for the years 1849–65 being 23·4 in. In 1864 the mortality was higher than in 1865, and the quantity of rain was only 16·8 in., and presented a rare example of deficiency. The deaths as registered in the several quarters of the year are given in the tables appended to this Report, which, with the summaries of quarterly returns, and Mr. Glaisher's copious details of the weather, afford the means of comparing 1865, in its successive stages, with previous years, under constantly changing and always new meteorological aspects.

Deaths in the Seasons.—The relative mortality of the seasons may be stated thus:—Out of four deaths that occurred in 1865 there were 1·2 in the March (or winter) quarter; 0·9 in the June quarter; 0·9 in the September (or summer) quarter; 1·0 in the December quarter. The mortality of the summer is almost invariably lower than that of spring. Its fluctuations in summer are governed by heat which developes diarrhœa, and by cold and abundant rain, which tend to subdue the activity of that disease.

The Table may be read thus:—In the year 1838 to every 100 males living there were 2·342 deaths of males; to every 100 females living there were 2·146 deaths of females; and to every 100 females who died there were 105 deaths of males. The last column shows the relative mortality of males and females; and that out of equal numbers living the deaths of males were 109 to every 100 deaths of females in 1838.

The mortality of 1865 was above the average in every quarter of the year, both in town and country.

Sex.—Of the 490,909 deaths 252,218 were those of males, 238,691 were those of females.

The proportion of deaths of males to 100 males living was 2·477, which is above the average; the proportion of deaths of females to a hundred living was 2·208, which is also above the average, but in a less degree above it. There were 106 deaths of males to a hundred of females. This excess of mortality in the males is great, for on an average of twenty-eight years the proportion is only 103. But in the population, as constituted at the present time, the female sex is the stronger in respect of number. If it were otherwise, if the numbers of the sexes were equal, the relative mortality is such that there would have been in 1865 the proportion of 112 deaths of males to 100 of females.

Age.—It is shown in the subjoined tables that in both sexes the rate of mortality was lowest at the age of ten years and under 15; from which point it increases onwards to life's extremity. Out of 100 boys living, who were ten but not 15 years old, the mortality was nearly 0·5. Out of an equal number living under five years of age the mortality was 7·4, about fourteen times as high as the lowest. At the age 35–45 years the rate was 1·5 per cent. Amongst men living at the age 65–75 the rate of mortality was nearly the same as that which prevailed among boys at the age 0–5 years. In the next decennial period, 75–85, the rate doubled itself, and was 15. In the succeeding decenniad it rose to 34, and of every hundred persons who had completed 95 years of age or more, and still lingered on the patriarchal summit, the mortality was 49, nearly a half died in the year.

These results may be compared with the rates of mortality in females at different ages, as these are given in the tables. It will be seen, on reference to the tables, that the comparison may be pursued through the successive periods of life, and in respect to the deaths, not of a single year, but of each of a series of years beginning with 1838.

* For mode of reading this Table, see Note to Table 17.

NOTE.—The Population used in the above calculations is now deduced from the ascertained rate of increase observed in the 20 Years 1841–61.

Death-rate in town, country, and in counties.—The population may be divided into two portions nearly equal in amount, urban and rural; the former in great measure inhabiting the chief towns; the latter living chiefly in small towns, villages, and the open country. The town rate of mortality was 2·546 per cent. in 1865; that which prevailed in the country was 2·081. Their respective averages are 2·414 and 1·987.

It has been stated that the mortality of England in the year was 2·339 per cent. That of London was 2·456. In Lancashire, always unfavourably distinguished, it rose higher than in any other county, namely, to 2·832. In the West Riding the death-rate was 2·667; in the East Riding 2·415; in Durham 2·400; in South Wales and Monmouthshire nearly 2·388; in Cumberland 2·381; in Northumberland 2·372.

The metropolis and the northern counties above mentioned comprise the chief seats of industry and commerce; they are full of life, and they produce the wealth which should make life healthy. It is worthy of note, that in none of the other counties, occupying so large a proportion of the whole area of the kingdom, did the death-rate rise so high as that of England.

The Table may be read thus, without reference to the decimal points:—In the March quarter of the year 1838, to 100,000 of the population of England there were 3,032 births, and 2,615 deaths registered. The three months January, February, March, contain 90, in Leap year 91 days; the three months April, May, June, 91 days; each of the two last quarters of the year 92 days. For this inequality a correction has been made in the calculation.

Great Britain.

The population of England and Wales estimated for the middle of the year 1865 was 20,990,946; that for Scotland was 3,136,057; therefore for Great Britain it was 24,127,003. The population of the smaller

* The returns for France in the years 1861 to 1865 include the three newly annexed departments. The deaths of Frenchmen abroad—civil or military—are registered in the books of the commune in which was their last domicile. M. Legoyt has revised the population and the numbers of marriages, births, and deaths for the years 1853–62.

† The returns for Austria exclude Hungary, Croatia, Slavonia, and Transylvania : but the proportions per cent. are estimated to represent the rates prevailing in the entire empire.

were in Scotland; while the deaths were 561,730, of which 70,821 were contributed by the northern kingdom.

The above facts represent a lower marriage-rate in Scotland than in England; viz., 1·502 (persons married to 100 living), as against 1·768; also a lower death-rate, 2·258, against 2·339; but the Scotch birth-rate is higher than the English, the former being 3·607, the latter 3·564. The excess in the birth-rate may be only apparent, and the difference in the two results may be due only to the greater stringency of the Scotch Act in respect to the registration of births.

The marriage, birth, and death rates in Great Britain were respectively 1·732, 3·569, and 2·328 per cent.

The marriage, birth, and death rates in the United Kingdom were 1·680, 3·543, and 2·307 per cent.

France, Austria, Italy, Spain.

The estimated population in 1865 of France was 37,980,924; of Austria (exclusive of Hungary, Croatia, Slavonia, Transylvania, and the Italian States) 20,876,643; of the Austrian Empire (exclusive of Italian States) 34,676,081; of Italy 22,483,663; and of Spain 16,378,958.

The marriage-rate was in France 1·576 per cent.; in the Austrian Empire 1·600; in Italy 1·830. That of England was higher than the two former, lower than the Italian rate.

The birth-rate in France was 2·650 per cent.; in the Austrian Empire 3·912; in Italy 3·849; in Spain 3·754. The English birth-rate was very much higher than the French, but lower than the Austrian, Italian, and Spanish birth-rates.

The death-rate was in France 2·422 per cent.; in the Austrian Empire 3·099; in Italy 2·993; in Spain 3·288. England was healthier than any of the four other countries.

The British Army.

I have been favoured by His Royal Highness the General Commanding-in-Chief with a return of the strength of the army at home and abroad in 1865. The British army at home consisted of 4412 officers and 79,974

| 1865 | 1·576 | 2·102 |

The rate of mortality of the army in the United Kingdom in 1865 was amongst officers 0·839 per cent. ; amongst non-commissioned officers and men it was 1·153 per cent. In the army abroad the death-rate was, of officers 1·576 ; of men 2·102 per cent.

Births and Deaths of British Subjects at Sea.

The number of merchant seamen at sea in 1865 was 197,643, amongst whom there were 4600 deaths, representing a mortality of 2·33 per cent. This mortality is high as compared with that of the previous thirteen years, in which it ranged from 1·38 to 2·19.

The mercantile-marine strength has increased from 162,416 in 1854 to 197,643 in 1865. There was a marked decline in the number of employed seamen in the three years 1859-61, a slight revival in 1862, and a great and sudden increase in the three subsequent years.

Of British subjects at sea in British merchant ships, exclusive of merchant seamen, there were 938 deaths. These deaths are reported to the Registrar-General of Seamen by the captains or commanding officers of vessels, who also reported 412 births as having occurred at sea.

Marine Register Book.

It is required by the Registration Act that captains or commanding officers of British vessels should transmit to the Registrar General the particulars of all births and deaths of English subjects, who are born or die at sea, such particulars to be entered in the Marine Register Book kept at this office. In 1865 111 births and 234 deaths were thus entered.

* British subjects are not particularly described upon Schedule C., but foreign names have been excluded from this account. A column headed Place of Birth was formerly contained in the schedule, for the purpose of distinguishing passengers as British subjects or Foreigners, but in many cases it was not filled up by masters, in consequence of their inability to obtain the information after the death had taken place. British and Foreign seamen are distinguished.

† The deaths of soldiers, marines, and seamen from the Royal Navy, who were passengers in British Merchant Ships, were 33 in 1856, 59 in 1857, 156 in 1858, 196 in 1859, 196 in 1860, 69 in 1861, 122 in 1862, 116 in 1863, 96 in 1864, and 140 in 1865. The number is 1183 in ten years, which, if added to the 4904 above, makes 6087, the total number of deaths of British subjects at sea in 1856-65, exclusive of those of merchant seamen.

1865) was 37,203,641. This result comprises 8,493,424 names of persons married, 17,208,017 of children born, and 11,502,200 of persons who had died in that period.

* Deduced from a return of the number of accounts of wages and effects of seamen (exclusive of masters) dying before the termination of the voyage, received by the Registrar General of Seamen. This return does not include seamen dying ashore in foreign parts, whose wages and effects are delivered to the consuls or officers of the hospitals to which such men are sent; accounts of their effects are sent direct to the Board of Trade.

If a seaman dies on the passage from Sunderland to Calcutta, his death is reported at Calcutta, and his wages and effects are accounted for and transmitted home, if the vessel is not to return direct to the United Kingdom. But if a passenger dies on board a ship which does not return to a British port immediately, but trades for a time in foreign parts, considerable delay may occur before his death is reported. In all cases, however, the date is given, and in the accompanying tables the births and deaths are classed according to the years in which they occurred. In some passenger-ships women are employed as stewards, and are counted as part of the crew. They therefore form part of the strength in this Table, and if the death of a stewardess occurs in the course of a voyage, it is included in the column of Deaths.

When a ship is lost with all persons on board, the owners return the number and names of the crew, and the names of the passengers, when known, to the Registrar-General of Seamen.

NOTE.—The numbers registered in 1837 are for the Half Year ending December 31st.

The searches for registers at the central office increase rapidly. During 1865 the searches by the public in the indexes of births, deaths, and marriages, prepared under the Registration Act, were 9016; of these 3618 were for certificates of births, 3904 for those of deaths, and 1494 for those of marriages. The birth certificates are applied for in the largest proportion of cases when the individuals have just attained or will shortly attain the full age of 21 years; more than one third of the searches for birth registers concerned persons born in the five years 1842–46. In the case of deaths the searches are in the largest proportion in the indexes of recent years; 1269 of these searches concerned persons deceased in the years 1862–65. The searches for marriage registers are very slightly more numerous in the later indexes. The above numbers do not include upwards of 400 searches for registers of births for purposes connected with the Factory Acts, the certificates in these cases being issued without charge. In addition, 1188 searches were made in the non-parochial registers deposited in this office, and 957 certified extracts were given. During the year 1865 the total amount received in fees for searches and certificates and paid into the Exchequer was 1487*l.* 12*s.*

Public Registration of Vaccination.

Jenner's discovery was recognized by the Legislature in 1802, and sums were annually voted by Parliament to the National Vaccine Establishment, founded 1808, to maintain the supply of lymph, and thus to promote vaccination.

On July 23, 1840, an Act (3 & 4 Victoria, cap. 29.), to extend the practice of vaccination, came into operation. It made lawful the contracts of Guardians with the Poor Law medical officers and other practitioners for the vaccination of all persons resident in Unions or Parishes, the only stipulation being that the amount of remuneration should depend on the number of persons successfully vaccinated. The vaccinators appointed under the Act were to report the number of cases vaccinated to the Guardians or Overseers.

This Act prohibited inoculation with variolous matter, by subjecting the inoculator, on summary conviction before two or more justices, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding one month.

The 4 & 5 Victoria, cap. 32., (June 21, 1841,) made a provision for the payment of the expenses of vaccination out of poor rate, and declared that vaccination at the public expense was not to be considered parochial relief.

In the year 1853, or thirteen years after the first Act had passed, vaccination was made compulsory by a measure introduced by Lord Lyttelton, who was not a member of the Government. The country was divided into districts, in which vaccinators were appointed.

Parents were directed by a notice on registering a birth, unless the child was previously vaccinated, to take it to the Parish vaccinator within three months of its birth, and after the operation to take the child to the same officer for the inspection of the result. In the absence of the parents, the custodian of the child was to procure the vaccination within four months.

The registrar was required, when he registered the births of children not previously vaccinated, to place notices in the hands of the parents, who, after receiving such notices, became subject to a fine of 20 shillings if they neglected to comply with the provisions of the Act.

For giving the notices, keeping a record, and registering the results in his book, the registrar was entitled to a fee of threepence "for each child "vaccinated in respect of which he shall have performed the duties "required in this Act."

The registrar was supplied with a book in which he entered—(1) No. in birth book; (2) when and where born; (3) name; (4) sex; (5) name and surname of parent; (6) rank, occupation, or profession of such parent;

(7) when registered; minute of notice, namely, (8) date, and (9) to whom given; and finally (10) date of medical certificate of successful vacccination; (11) name of the medical man by whom the certificate is signed. The first seven particulars were to be copied from the birth register, to insure the identification of the child; the eighth and ninth particulars were records of the notice; the particulars in the tenth and eleventh columns were to be copied from the medical certificates, which only reached the registrar in rare instances, where, for example, the same man was an active public vaccinator and a registrar of births, registering his own vaccinations.

The absence of the information to be supplied by the medical certificates deprived the register of all its value; the labour of the registrar was thrown away, and through no fault of his own he was thus deprived of the fee which he was led to expect by the Act of Parliament. For statistical purposes the imperfect records were useless.

If the child died before vaccination, if the child was not vaccinated, or if he was vaccinated for any cause out of the district, the registrar did not get his fee. And further, if the child was vaccinated the registrar failed to get his fee unless he received a certificate from the medical practitioner who performed the operation, and who had an opportunity of inspecting the result.*

The thousands of medical practitioners in the districts of England were supplied with four sorts of books of blank certificates by this office; one book for cases of successful vaccination, one book of duplicates to be sent to the registrar, one book for cases of insusceptibility, and one for cases of temporary unfitness for successful vaccination.

COMPULSORY VACCINATION ACT.

(16 & 17 Victoriæ, Cap. 100.)

SCHEDULE A.

DUPLICATE MEDICAL CERTIFICATE OF SUCCESSFUL VACCINATION.

[To be transmitted (pursuant to Section IV.) to the Registrar of Births and Deaths of the Sub-district in which the operation was performed.]

DIRECTIONS

for filling up this Certificate.

Insert in the several blank spaces, the following particulars:—

(a) Child's Name and Surname.

(b) Child's Age.

(c) Father's, or (if the child be illegitimate) Mother's Name and Surname.

(d) Parent's Residence [if in a Town, insert the No. of the House, the Street, and the Town, as in Example 2], and also the County.

(e) Date of Certificate.

Insert hereunder, from the Paper produced to you, the No. of the Entry of the Child's Birth in the Register-Book.

Entry No. 71.

I, the undersigned, hereby certify, That (a) Jonas Jenkins, aged (b) 2 months, the Child of (c) Jonathan Jenkins of (d) [and residing at No. 17, in High Street in] the Parish of West Wickham, in the County of Kent, has been successfully Vaccinated by me.

Dated this (e) 7th day of February 1867.

(Signature of the Person certifying) Timothy Edwards.

N.B.—This Certificate, when it cannot be delivered to the Registrar in person, may be forwarded to him by the Post, leaving the Postage unpaid.

(Indorsement.)

To Mr. William Bickerstith,

Registrar of Births and Deaths for the Sub-district of

Bromley,

Kent.

UNPAID.

* The proportion of omissions to bring children for inspection in some districts is said to amount to $\frac{1}{4}$, $\frac{1}{3}$, $\frac{1}{2}$, or even $\frac{2}{3}$ of the children vaccinated. 6th Report of Medical Officer of Privy Council, pp. 104–6. See able Report of Drs. Seaton and Dr. Buchanan on the defective working of the Act.

The medical man, in the midst of his practice as a public vaccinator, had after each operation to lay down his lancet, take up his pen, and write the particulars of each case in his own book, and after inspection of the arm to fill up two certificates,—to place the first in the hands of the parent or other person, and to transmit, by post or otherwise, a duplicate to the registrar of the sub-district in which the operation was performed.

The medical fee was fixed at a sum "not less than" eighteen pence and half a crown, according as the patient's distance from the vaccinator's residence was less or more than two miles.

Practically these medical certificates were either not written, or not sent to the registrars, in numberless instances, and the essential columns of their books are for entire pages all blanks. The registrars are entitled under section 8. to allow searches of their registers of successful vaccination on payment of the fee of one shilling for each search and sixpence for each certificate. The information, when it has been obtained, with so much trouble to all parties, parents, medical men, and registrars, is so little appreciated that the registrars have received nothing under this clause.

In 1858 (August 2), by 21 and 22 Victoria, cap. 97., the powers of the General Board of Health were transferred to the Privy Council, who were empowered to issue such "regulations as they think fit for securing the due qualification of persons to be hereafter contracted with by Guardians and Overseers," and for securing the efficient performance of vaccination. The money voted by Parliament towards the expenses of the National Vaccine Establishment, or for otherwise providing for the supply of vaccine lymph, the Act says "shall be applied under the directions of the Privy Council." Clause 8. adds further, that proceedings for penalties may be taken on the complaint of the registrar or an officer authorized by the Guardians, and that the cost of such proceedings shall be defrayed out of the common fund of the Union. This Act expired on August 1st, 1859, and was then made perpetual by 22 & 23 Vict. c. 3.

The 24 & 25 Vict., of 1st August 1861, facilitates proceedings before justices for the recovery of penalties under the Acts relating to vaccination.

Such is a brief sketch of the recent legislation on the subject of vaccination.

Confining myself to the registration of successful cases which, was entrusted to the officers under me, I may state that immediately on the passing of the compulsory Act (16 & 17 Vict. c. 100.) I sent a copy of the Act to each of the 2191 registrars in England and Wales, with an instructional circular, dated September 29th, 1853, reprinted in the Official List, which is sent annually to each registrar. See pages 458–461 of the List for 1867.

I have in the 13 years that ended in 1866 sent out for registrars no less than 7,743,000 notices to be given to parents and others registering births; for medical men, 60,095 books, containing 6,009,500 certificates of successful vaccination to be given to parents; 66,275 books for 6,627,500 duplicate certificates to be sent by vaccinators to registrars; 3394 books for 169,700 insusceptible cases, 3395 books for 169,750 cases of temporary unfitness; 17,866 books for the registration of vaccination, containing spaces for 8,665,110 entries. The total blank certificates, and the total spaces in registers, amount in the aggregate to 29,384,560.

On an average of the ten years, 1857–66, 707,052 births were registered annually; 616,100 notices were sent out for distribution to the parents of children registered before the children were vaccinated. The 1425 birth register books issued annually would contain 712,650 entries, the vaccination books 703,153 entries.

As has been already stated, the registration of vaccination having so generally failed, the books have been of little or no use; and the registrars have labored in vain, and have seldom been paid for their pains. I have felt it my duty to represent these circumstances to Her Majesty's Government at various times; but up to the present date, although amendment Bills have been presented to Parliament, none have hitherto passed.

It was hoped by its sanguine supporters that the compulsory Vaccination Act might stamp out small-pox; but hitherto it has failed in that respect. In London during the 13 years (1841–53), when the voluntary Vaccination Acts by public vaccinators were in operation, 10,848 deaths from small-pox were registered; in the 13 years (1854-66) under the compulsory law the registered deaths by small-pox were 9972. In the metropolis the annual deaths were reduced only from 834 to 767 by small-pox annually; the annual mortality by small-pox from 38 to 28 per 100,000 living. The mean annual mortality from all causes in the corresponding years was 2447 and 2431 deaths to every 100,000 living.

In all England and Wales the registered deaths by small-pox in 9 years, 1841-42 and 1847–53, under the voluntary law, amounted to 46,991; in the 12 years, 1854–65, they amounted to 47,710. The annual deaths by small-pox in the first period were 5221; in the second period 3976; the annual rate of mortality by the disease was reduced in the proportion of 30 to 20 per 100,000 of the living. The annual mortality in the two periods from all causes was 2269 and 2238 per 100,000 living.

There is a diminution in the mortality by small-pox, and this may be fairly ascribed to the progress of vaccination. But it is evident that the disease as yet shows no signs of extinction. In the year 1865 the deaths from small-pox in England and Wales were 6411; and the rate of mortality was 31 per 100,000 living.

A Bill to consolidate and amend the laws relating to vaccination has been brought into Parliament during the session of the present year, by Lord Robert Montagu. The registration of successful cases by the registrars is retained, and the public vaccinator is required, after having ascertained the success of the operation, to transmit, by post or otherwise, the certificate, within 21 days after the performance of the operation, in the prescribed form, to the registrar of the district in which the birth was registered, and only when this is unknown to the registrar within whose district the operation shall have been performed.

The parents or guardians are required to transmit the certificate to the registrar, where the vaccination shall be performed by a medical practitioner not being a public vaccinator.

To the registrar it is proposed to give a fee of one penny for every notice he gives on registering a birth, and "another fee of threepence in "respect of every such child whose certificate he shall have registered "as herein provided." This threepence he will after all his trouble fail to get where the child dies, or is not vaccinated, or is not presented to the vaccinator for inspection, or where the public vaccinator, or in private cases the parents, fail to transmit to him the medical certificate. These duties are, it is true, enforced by a fine of 20*s.*, that may be recovered from defaulting vaccinators, or from parents who can command that sum.

I can only express a hope that if this Bill passes, the registration of successful vaccination may work more successfully than it has done under the previous Act, and may not prove a clog on the registration of births.

It will be my duty to see that if the new measure becomes law it does not fail through any default of the officers under my control, who if under this as under the old law fail to get paid, as I fear may be the case, must trust to the wisdom and justice of parliament for redress.

It is necessary to separate distinctly the public registration from the efficient performance of vaccination, which should extend such protection as it affords from a fatal, loathsome, and disfiguring disease to the whole of the population of the kingdom in which it was discovered.

The usual Report on the Causes of Death in England, addressed to me by Dr. Farr, will be found in the Appendix.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your faithful servant,
GEORGE GRAHAM,
Registrar-General.

Summary of the Quarterly Reports, 1865.

First Quarter.—January, February, March.

The United Kingdom.—Through the courtesy of the Registrars-General of Scotland and Ireland the returns can now be given for the United Kingdom. The number of persons married in the March quarter of 1865 was 108,960. The registered births in the quarter were 261,063; the deaths 190,537. The numbers, after adding one third to those of Ireland for defective registration, were: Persons married 117,138; births 273,838; deaths 200,317. The estimated population in 1865 was 29,768,089.

England.—Marriages were numerous in the first three months of the present year, chiefly in consequence of increased activity in the manufactures and other industry of the northern populations.

A birth-rate high above any example furnished by the previous ten years maintained the increase of population. The catalogue of deaths was also very heavy. A severe and protracted winter, with scarlatina and fever, swelled the mortuary returns. Under less favourable sanitary conditions the kingdom might have been ravaged by pestilence. And there is much still in our houses and towns to set in order.

Marriages.—Of weddings the number in the March quarter was 36,807; the daily average was 409. As it is the season in which employment is the slackest, it is also that invariably in which marriages are the fewest. There were 6381 marriages in London. The four most populous districts of the metropolis are Pancras, with about two hundred thousand persons, Kensington, Lambeth, and Marylebone. In Kensington there were 462 marriages; in Pancras, with its larger population, 454; in Marylebone almost the same number, though it contains fewer persons than Pancras by upwards of 30,000; in Lambeth the number was very great, for it rose to 482, the highest returned by the London districts, though its population scarcely exceeds that of Marylebone, and is much less than those of Pancras and Kensington.

The annual marriage-rate in the quarter, viz., proportion per cent. of persons married to population, was 1·428, the average of ten corresponding quarters, 1855–64, being 1·38. In 1864 (winter quarter) the rate was 1·472.

Births.—In the three months that ended 31st March 194,130 children were born. The births in London were 27,824, a number almost equal to the total contribution of the two north-western counties, Cheshire and Lancashire. As with the marriages, so with the births, the increase was furnished chiefly by the metropolis, the West Riding of Yorkshire, Durham, Northumberland, and South Wales. The births in the West Riding increased as follows:—In the March quarter of 1863 they were 14,846; in that of 1864 they were 16,007, and in the present year 16,430. In Durham the numbers were 5931; 6397; 6703. In Northumberland 3275; 3403; 3473. In South Wales 6217; 6487; and 6698. In Sunderland the births in the three periods were 950, 1058, and 1100. In the March quarter of the present year 1902 children were born in the parish of Pancras, London; and in the district of Bradford in the West Riding, which contains a population almost as great, 2193 were born in the same time.

The birth-rate of the quarter (children born to 100 persons living) was 3·765 against an average of 3·63. The result is extraordinary. In the same period of last year it was 3·740; in that of 1860 it was 3·707; but the forty quarters of the last ten years supply only another instance in which the birth-rate was as high as 3·700; and none as high as that of the last quarter.

Increase of Population.—The births, as has been stated, were 194,130; and the deaths in the same period were 140,410. The excess of the former over the latter was 53,720, and represents the natural increase of the population.

But the population of the United Kingdom lost about 25,000 by emigration in the quarter that ended 31st March; and of these about 8903 were persons of English origin. The total emigration (including foreigners, from British and Irish ports where there are Emigration officers was 27,513 persons, and showed a great decrease on that of the same quarter in 1863, which was 37,806, and a still greater as compared with the number last year, which was 41,037. The emigration to the United States was little more than half of that which took place in the March quarter of 1864.

Of 17,865 emigrants who went to the United States in the present year, about 3700 were English, 800 Scotch, and 11,000 Irish. The rest were foreigners.

Prices, Pauperism, and the Weather.—The price of wheat, 38*s.* 4*d.* per quarter, was less by 2*s.* than in the first three months of last year, and less by 8*s.* 3*d.* than in the same period of 1863. Both beef and mutton were dear. The average price of the best potatoes at the water-side market, Southwark, was 91*s.* per ton. In the March quarter of 1863 it was 125*s.*; in that of 1864 it was 62*s.* 6*d.*

The following are the returns of paupers in the last three winter quarters:—

| | In-door. | Out-door. |
|---|---|---|
| 1863 - - - | 142,257 - | 943,324 |
| 1864 - - - | 139,606 - | 855,776 |
| 1865 - - - | 140,517 - | 819,898 |

The numbers show a decrease in out-door pauperism.

Mr. Glaisher writes that January began with cold frosty weather; a warm period set in on the 4th day and continued till the 16th, during which period, though the weather was mild, the sky was cloudy, and the wind blowing a gale. From the 17th January to the end of the quarter, with the exception of short intervals at the beginning and end of February, the weather was cold for the season, sometimes to an unpleasant degree. In a cold period in January the temperature of the air was as low as 20° at many places; in February from 13° to 20° in many places, and as low as 8° at Birmingham; and in March at the equinox it was as low as 23°. In January and February snowstorms were frequent, and extended all over England and Scotland. At the end of February the weather was extremely wild and stormy; and March was cold and ungenial throughout. The mean temperature of January at Greenwich was 36·3°; that of February and also that of March 36·6°, each being below the average of the corresponding periods in twenty-four years, and the mean temperature of March being as much as 5·4° below the average. Usually February is 2° and March 5° warmer than January; but this year the increase was not obtained. To find a March equally cold it is necessary to go back to 1845, 1837, and 1814, when the mean temperature was above 35° and below 36°. In 1785 it was 33·9°. Towards the end of last century that month was oftener remarkable for extreme coldness than it has been in later times.

Deaths and State of the Public Health.—In the last quarter the total number of deaths was 140,410, being less than in the same period of 1864, when it was barely 143,000, and much greater than in that of 1863, when it was 128,000. In London it was 20,815; in Cheshire and Lancashire, containing a population somewhat greater, 23,309. In all the eleven Divisions of England the deaths were less numerous, as compared with those of the March quarter of last year, except the tenth, namely, the Northern Counties (Durham, Northumberland, &c.), and the eleventh, Monmouthshire and Wales. In each of these two Divisions there was an increase. The South Eastern Counties also furnish an exception, but the numbers in the two quarters were almost equal.

The rate of mortality in England was 2·723 (viz., deaths to 100 persons living) against an average for the quarter of 2·52. Since the March quarter of 1855 the returns supply no example of as high a death-rate, with the exception of that of last year, when it rose in the three months to 2·772. The mortality was excessive both in the large town districts and in those districts which embrace the rural and small town population; 2·883 in the former, 2·522 in the latter; and it rose in both to nearly the same extent above the respective averages; the advantage, however, falling to the towns whose inhabitants are generally better fed, and in this important matter better fortified against the inclemency of the sky.

The effect of the winter-like severity of March doubtless remains to be read in legible characters in the registers of the quarter now running; and the lateness of that unpropitious weather must be considered in any comparison between the last two winters. The mean temperature of the winter of 1864 was 37·9° at Greenwich, and was higher by 1·4° than that of last winter; but the weather was marked by more frequent and abrupt changes, and as the cold was more seasonably confined to the first two months, its effect would be apparent chiefly on the death-registers of that quarter. The deaths from bronchitis in London in the winter quarter of 1863–5 were successively 2217, 4023, and 3217.

The following statements exhibit the progress of scarlatina and typhus in London since 1860. Scarlatina discovers a uniform well-marked tendency to increase in the last six months, and attain its maximum in the December quarter, the earlier half of the following year witnessing a decrease. It was decidedly less fatal in 1864 than in 1863; while typhus, after declining in 1863, rose again in 1864. The last quarter of the year also favours the development of typhus, but by a law which is apparently less constant.

Bronchitis and pneumonia, scarlatina, fever, and small-pox prevailed last winter both in town and country. Zymotic diseases ravaged South Wales, and raised the death-rate in the Welsh Division to 2·951 per cent., which is higher than the rate of London or of any other division except that of the cotton districts. Out of 438 deaths in the sub-district of Cardiff, 55 were by small-pox, 31 by measles, 20 by scarlatina. Out of 128 deaths at Llantrisaint, 53 were from scarlatina. In the lower sub-district of Merthyr Tydfil out of 303 deaths, 32 were from scarlatina, 37 from measles, 11 from small-pox, and 20 from typhus. Aberdare returned 371 deaths, and of these 75 were from small-pox, and 35 from scarlatina. Of 203 deaths at Neath, small-pox caused 56, measles 31. There were 38 deaths from scarlatina at Llangafelach (Swansea), out of a total number of 143. The ill-health and the frequent deaths of the population of the Principality appeal to the pity of every patriotic Welshman.

Small-pox prevailed in many other parts; and amongst these at the following places, where it was chiefly fatal:—Tiverton, Lansdowne (Bath), Tewkesbury, Shrewsbury, Burton-on-Trent (where 41 were from small-pox out of a total number of 185), Aldridge (Walsall), Wednesbury (West Bromwich), Rowley Regis (Dudley), Birmingham, Lincoln, Liverpool, West Derby, Prescot, Warrington, Bolton, Scarborough, Easington, Chester-le-Street, Whitehaven, Pontypool, Newport. The Registrar of Chester-le-Street complains of great want of cleanliness amongst the mining population.

Scarlatina caused 20 out of 22 deaths at Northam, Southampton, a low-lying ground near the Itchen. Typhoid fever and scarlatina prevailed at Ilchester, Somersetshire, where there are old dilapidated hovels, over-crowded, and without drainage or ventilation. In the sub-district of Mount Pleasant, Liverpool, of 1150 deaths from all causes, no less than 318 were from typhus, nearly 300 of which occurred in the workhouse. At Everton, West Derby, 104 out of 775 deaths were from typhus and typhoid fever. In the sub-district of Cheetham, Manchester, there was great mortality in the workhouse at Crumpsall, 119 deaths occurred in it, 63 of which were from measles.

The Registrar of Rillington (Malton) writes as follows:

West Heslerton used to be a most healthy village until it was drained last year; but it has never been free from fever since. The drain terminated in a walled receptacle at the end of the village, which was entirely closed at the top, thus throwing poisonous gases into the houses at every back door. At a slight expense the work might be carried into a field about 300 yards from the spot, and the village thus cleared from what has proved a heavy scourge to its inhabitants.

Taking the ten large towns in the United Kingdom, the death-rate of Liverpool (borough) was 3·979 per cent. in the quarter. The next highest rate is that of Glasgow 3·898; Dublin 3·431; Manchester 3·414; Leeds 3·203; Edinburgh 3·035; Birmingham 2·874; Bristol 2·813. London and the Borough of Salford showed the lowest death-rates 2·798 and 2·796; and their rates were almost the same.

Second Quarter.—April, May, June.

The United Kingdom.—The number of persons married in the second quarter of the year was 114,372, the registered births were 262,483; and the registered deaths 157,338. The numbers, after adding one third to those of Ireland for defective registration, were: Persons married 118,146; births 275,537; deaths 165,464. The estimated population in 1865 of England, Scotland, and Ireland was 29,772,294.

England.—The marriages in the spring quarter of the year were more numerous than they had ever been before; and this implies that the great body of the people were prosperous. The birth-rate in the second quarter was high, as it has been in every quarter since the summer of 1863; and the death-rate was above the average, for while the southern parts of the country were remarkably healthy, the mortality was high in Wales, and it was not low in some northern counties.

Marriages.—91,654 persons married in the quarter that ended on June 30th. The marriage-rate was 1·754, or ·07 above the quarterly average.

The increase of marriages occurred chiefly in London, the Eastern Counties, Shropshire, Leicestershire, Yorkshire, Durham, Northumberland, and South Wales. The marriages declined in Lancashire: while there was some depression in the cotton manufacturing districts, there was increased activity among the woollen manufacturers. The demand for coal and iron increases every year. The effects are plainly traceable in the marriage registers.

Births.—The number of children born in the three months ending 30th June was 192,988, against 188,835 in the same period of last year. In London the births were 26,444 against 25,066; in Lancashire they were 25,624 against 25,493. The counties of Durham and Northumberland exhibit a marked increase. The former with a population in 1861 of 542,125 persons returns 7111 births; South Wales containing 699,722 persons in 1861 returns not more than 7169.

The annual birth-rate in the quarter was 3·692 per cent. against an average of 3·60 in ten previous June quarters. Within this range of comparison it rose in only one instance as high as 3·700. In London the birth-rate was 3·543; in the city of Manchester 3·624; in the borough of Liverpool it was as high as 4·173; in that of Leeds 4·497; and in Glasgow it rose to 4·604.

Increase of Population.—The registers of births record, as has been mentioned, a total of 192,988; the deaths in the same three months are 115,892. The excess of the former over the latter is 77,096, and represents the natural increase of population, which averaged 847 daily.

From ports in the United Kingdom where there are Government Emigration Officers there went out in the June quarter 71,087 emigrants, of whom 52,730 were destined for the United States, 6943 for British North America, 9820 for the Australian colonies, and 1594 for other parts of the world. More than a fourth part of the emigration consisted of persons of English origin; but the number of Irish emigrants was double that of English, and all the former, except a few thousands, went to the United States. The Scotch who left their native country were about 4600. The emigration to the United States was not quite equal to that of the same quarter in either of the two preceding years; and the numbers who went to other destinations also showed a decrease.

Prices, Pauperism, and the Weather.—The average price of wheat was 40*s.* 6*d.* per quarter; a shilling higher than it was in the June quarter of last year, but 6*s.* less than it was in the same period of 1863. Beef by the carcase at Newgate and Leadenhall Markets was on an average $5\frac{3}{4}$d. per lb., and was a halfpenny dearer than in the two previous June quarters. Mutton was $7\frac{3}{8}$d. per lb.; it was $1\frac{1}{4}$d. dearer than in the same period of 1864, and nearly 2*d.* dearer than in that of 1863. The average price of best potatoes at the Waterside Market, Southwark, was 102*s.* 6*d.* per ton, being about double the price of the June quarter of 1864, but less than that of 1863.

The average number of paupers relieved in-door was 123,760, which is rather more than in the spring of last year, less than in that of 1863; the number relieved out-door was 768,496, exhibiting a small decrease on the pauperism of 1864, and a very great decrease on that of the previous year, when the number of persons who received relief was greater than in the present year by 100,000.

In his summary of results derived from the copious meteorological details that have been compiled with much care, Mr. Glaisher writes that the unusually severe weather of March interrupted agricultural operations and checked vegetation; on 5th April this wintry weather ceased suddenly; and till 10th June, during a period of sixty-seven days, the temperature was, with few exceptions, above the average, the average daily excess being nearly five degrees; and the quarter was closed by a period of twenty days in which intervals of cold and warm weather succeeded each other, but with a predominance of cold. The high summer temperature of April urged vegetation to rapid growth, and soon effaced the traces of a backward season. Rain, which had been much needed, fell early in May, and in the second week of that month over the whole of the British islands. The mean temperature was above the average in each month, remarkably above it in April and May. The mean temperature of the quarter was 56·2° at Greenwich; and there is no record of any previous instance in which it was so high in the same period of the year. There was 7·2 in. of rain. The fall was deficient in April; above the average in May and June. The air was unusually dry; for though there was a great deal of rain in May, it fell in showers which were heavy, but of short duration.

Deaths and State of the Public Health.—The total number of deaths in the quarter that ended 30th June was 115,892 against 118,121 and 116,880 in the same three months of 1863 and 1864 respectively. The returns of London in the last three springs discover, as regards absolute numbers, a near approach to identity; but those of the kingdom generally show a decrease in last quarter, Wales, and some northern parts of England, where epidemic diseases have been rife, or active industrial operations have attracted population, being the only important exceptions. The singularly fine weather has exercised a beneficial influence on the public health; and the effect would doubtless have been more marked in the death registers if the preceding March had been less cold and ungenial. The winter months, and especially March, were as remarkable for cold as the late spring season was for heat; and many bronchial affections, which the former period transmitted, ran their course to a fatal termination after the propitious change of weather had begun. The following counties may be mentioned amongst those which exhibit a decrease of deaths in the present returns: Hampshire, Berkshire, Hertfordshire, Oxfordshire, Huntingdonshire, Cambridgeshire, Suffolk, Wiltshire, Cornwall, Staffordshire, Worcestershire, Warwickshire, Leicestershire, Rutlandshire, Cheshire, the East and North Ridings of Yorkshire, Cumberland, and Westmorland. In Lancashire the deaths in the spring quarter of 1863 and 1864 were 16,541 and 16,394; in last quarter 16,790. In the West Riding of Yorkshire they were in the same periods 10,469, 10,005, and 10,414. In South Wales they were 3871; 4062; 4779.

In England the annual rate of mortality for the June quarter was 2·217 per cent. (deaths to a hundred persons living) against an average of 2·19 for the corresponding quarter in ten previous years. In 1863 and 1864 the rate was 2·308 and 2·260 per cent.

The South-eastern Division, embracing Surrey, Kent, Sussex, Hampshire, and Berkshire, was the most healthy; for in it the rate of mortality was only 1·882 per cent. The next in degree of health was that which contains the South Midland Counties, where the mortality was 2·002. In four other divisions, viz. the Eastern, South Western, West Midland, and North Midland Counties, it did not rise as high as 2·1 per cent. In the North-western Counties (Cheshire and Lancashire), in Yorkshire, and Wales, it was but little under 2·5 per cent. The Registrars of Welsh districts report measles, scarlatina, and small-pox as diseases that had prevailed in the quarter. In Llantrisaint, of 122 deaths 27 were from measles, 20 from scarlatina, and 16 from small-pox; in the Lower sub-district of Merthyr Tydfil in 199 deaths from all causes 31 were from scarlatina; in Aberdare, another sub-district of Merthyr Tydfil, 28 cases of small-pox were fatal; in the town of Swansea there were 19 deaths from small-pox, and 23 from measles, out of 251 from all causes; scarlatina had been very prevalent in Brecknock; and in Wrexham nearly a fourth part of the deaths was from measles. Newport in Monmouthshire had been attacked by small-pox in a malignant form; and the same disease had been prevalent and fatal in the Whitehaven district, at Gravesend, Hastings, Swindon, Calne, St. Ives, and Bath. Measles was fatal in Manchester, Wigan, and Oldham; and in the sub-district of Mount Pleasant, Liverpool, out of 849 deaths, 207 were from typhus, 26 from small-pox, and 26 from measles. In Farnham, Surrey, 24 out of 87 deaths were from scarlatina.

In London the total number of deaths was 17,370. The annual rate of mortality for the quarter was 2·316 per cent. In the town of Leeds it was 2·714; in that of Liverpool it was 3·125; in Dublin it was 2·368; in Edinburgh 2·639; in Glasgow 3·065. Of ten large towns in the United Kingdom Birmingham shows the lowest mortality for last spring; and Bristol in the same Table stands in a position not much less favourable.

In the deaths from scarlatina in London there was a decided decrease; they were 385, which is much less than in any June quarter since 1861; in the December quarter of last year they were 1095. It is satisfactory that typhus has not increased recently, although the decrease is not considerable. In the last quarter of 1864 the deaths from it were 1064; in the first two quarters of the present year they were 936 and 700. There were 738 deaths in London from diarrhœa and summer cholera. This complaint, which is commonly so fatal to young children in a more advanced period of the year, appears to have been forced into earlier developement by the unusual heat of the season; for in the spring quarter of 1863 and 1864 the numbers referred to it were only 232 and 334. Thus in the present year the previous number has been more than doubled. It is possible that other unusual conditions besides temperature have tended to produce this result; but in present darkness on the nature of those conditions, the fact itself is important, and cannot safely be overlooked, at a time when malignant cholera prevails in a part of Egypt which is in frequent and direct communication with English ports. The same precautionary measures, that are the best preparation against the threatened attack, are also the most useful to repress, if not extirpate, those marauding bands of diseases that always infest within the frontiers, and are not the less dangerous because they excite less alarm by sudden and violent outbreaks. An abundant supply of water is a first necessity for this purpose; and the inhabitants of a town should not be obliged "to fetch it from a distance," which the Registrar of Hindley in the Wigan district complains that the people there find it necessary to do, though it is a place where collieries and ironworks are in operation.

In cholera epidemics of past years the seaports of Northumberland and Durham have suffered early and severely. The following reports up to the end of June from the former county are therefore satisfactory:—

Newcastle-on-Tyne; All Saints.—Births 325; Deaths 162. The births are above and the deaths below the average, affording a satisfactory proof of the healthy condition of my district, comprising the parishes of All Saints, Christ Church, and St. Anne, with a population of upwards of 27,000. The lower part of the town, especially in the neighbourhood of Sandgate and Pandon Dene, inhabited by the hard-working and industrious poor, is at present remarkably healthy. There has not been one death from typhoid fever or typhus during the last three months.

Tynemouth; Wallsend.—Births 118; Deaths 24. The number of births is considerably above the average, in consequence of the very great increase of population caused by the great demand for labour at the new ship building yards and chemical factories. The number of deaths is very small. I never knew the district in a more healthy condition. The sanitary arrangements at Willington quay are very much improved.

Third Quarter.—July, August, September.

The United Kingdom.—The Registers of the United Kingdom show that 113,968 persons married; that the births of 243,419 children, and the deaths of 148,123 persons of both sexes, were registered in the three months ending on September 30th. The numbers, after adding one third to those of Ireland for defective registration, were: Persons married 117,832; births 254,805; deaths 154,408. The natural recorded increase of population in 92 days was 95,296, or 1036 daily. Exclusive of 11,490 foreigners, 53,564 emigrants sailed from these islands in the same period. So about 582 emigrants left daily; and allowing for defects in registration, which has only recently been established in Ireland, the increase at home has been about 506 daily.

The death rate of the United Kingdom differs little from the average of England and Wales to be here discussed; while the several facts concerning the other divisions of the Kingdom are fully set forth in the reports of the Registrar General of Scotland and the Registrar General of Ireland.

The estimated population in 1865 of England, Scotland, and Ireland is 29,772,294. The death rate of the quarter is 1·974 per cent.

England.—The marriage-rate was much above the average. Weddings were more rife than they were in the previous summer, or in the summer of any year since registration began. This implies that the great body of the people were prosperous. The birth-rate exceeded the average; and the death-rate also exceeded the average rate of the corresponding quarter of ten previous years. Many districts suffered from scarlatina and other epidemics during the two years 1863–64, and the mortality has been exceptionally high during the last three summers.

During the last three months scarlatina was epidemic in many places. Diarrhœa was prevalent and often fatal to children; and scattered cases of summer cholera were as usual fatal in unhealthy districts. At the end of the quarter 4 deaths from cholera occurred in Southampton, 2 of which were pronounced epidemic cholera. The meteorology of the season has been extraordinary, the potato has in many places been blighted, and the cattle have, to an extent unknown, been struck down by zymotic disease; yet the people have been hitherto untouched by pestilence. While Marseilles and Paris are smitten by cholera, London and the large cities of the United Kingdom remain unassailed.

Marriages.—91,704 persons married in the quarter that ended on September 30th, 1865. The rate of marriage was 1·732, or ·13 above the average.

The increase of marriages was general, but it was most striking in Yorkshire, where the woollen trade flourished in an extraordinary degree; Lancashire was also recovering from its depression. In London the marriages exceeded by nearly a thousand the marriages in the summer quarter of 1863.

Births.—181,941 births were registered in the three months ending with September. It is the highest number that has ever been registered in any summer quarter. The mean daily number of births was 1978; that is 82 hourly, or more than one birth a minute.

The births exceeded by 8502 and 926 the births registered in the corresponding quarters of the two previous years; the chief increase since 1863 being in London, Lancashire, Yorkshire (West Riding), Durham, and Wales.

The birth-rate of the quarter is 3·434, the average being 3·32.

Increase of Population.—As the births were 181,941 and the deaths 113,362, the natural increase of population in 92 days was 68,579, or 745 daily. The migration from one part of the United Kingdom to another is unrecorded; but England every year is joined by a certain number of recruits from Scotland and Ireland.

About 19,256 emigrants of English origin sailed in the 92 days from the ports of the United Kingdom, at which there are Government emigration officers; 9447 sailed to the United States, 2311 to the North American Colonies, 6018 to Australasia, and 1480 to other places; on an average 209 English emigrants left these shores daily.

Prices, Pauperism, and the Weather.—The average price of wheat was 43*s.* 3*d.* a quarter during the last three months ending with September 30th; thus it is a shilling a quarter higher than in the corresponding season of 1864, and 2*s.* 4*d.* lower than in that of 1863. The price of wheat has been remarkably steady during the two years, the three months average ranging little above or below the average (40*s.* 9*d.*) of the whole period. The best potatoes at the Waterside Market, Southwark, sold on an average at 85*s.* a ton; so the price was lower by 15*s.* than it was in the corresponding quarter of last year, and somewhat lower than the prices of the same season in 1863.

The average prices of the best mutton by the carcase in the corresponding summer months of 1863, 1864, 1865 rose from 6¾*d.* to 7*d.* and finally to 8¾*d.* per lb. The price of inferior qualities rose from 4¾*d.* to 5½*d.* and to 6¼*d.* per lb. The best beef, notwithstanding the panic, which the retail butchers have turned to account, rose in the same periods only from 6¼*d.* to 6½*d.*, and to 7*d.* per lb. The prices of the inferior qualities remained steadily at 4½*d.* per lb. during the three last summers. If the importation of cattle had been stopped, prices would, probably, have been very different.

A gratifying reduction of pauperism is observable during the three summers; the numbers of in-door and out-door poor fell from 937,581 to 856,408 and to 836,832. Within the interval of two years 100,749 paupers were struck off the relief rolls, without, we may hope, any inhumanity on the part of the Poor Law administrators.

The weather of the summer quarter was remarkable. The temperature of July was 2·4° above the average of 94 years, and the temperature of September, when the sun no longer rises to the same height, and no longer shines so many hours, was higher than the temperature of July. There was little rain in September; the blue sky was cloudless, and the air was unusually dry; but the dews were copious, and fog was prevalent on twenty days. To find a September of which the temperature approaches 63°·9, Mr. Glaisher travels back to the year 1815, when the temperature was 62°·3; and in all the years since 1771 he does not find its parallel. The temperature of August was below the average; but notwithstanding the temporary depression, the temperature of the six months from April to September exceeds any on record since the same remote date. It was approached within a little by the temperature of the same months of 1846. Both years had in them something of a tropical character.

The rain-fall at Greenwich was 6·5 inches, which is nearly an inch (·9) below the average of 50 years. Rain fell in large quantities at long intervals. The wind on the surface of the earth blew at the rate of eight miles an hour. At all the stations the rain-fall in September was inconsiderable.

Deaths and State of the Public Health.—113,362 deaths were registered in the three months, and the mortality was at the annual rate of 2·140 per cent.; that is ·17 above the average, but differing little from the mortality of the two preceding summer quarters.

This is the result of a balance of high and low rates in the eleven divisions of the kingdom, of the mortality per 1000 in the two summer quarters of 1864 and 1865. The rate for all England was 21 in the two seasons. Yorkshire here proclaims aloud in the increasing death-rate her sanitary failings; the summer mortality rose from 24 to 25. In Lancashire and Cheshire the mortality was 23 and 26. The Eastern Counties also experienced an increase; so did the Northern Counties. There is a decisive fall in the mortality of Gloucestershire, Staffordshire, Worcestershire, and Warwickshire, reducing the mortality of the West Midland Counties from 22 to 19. Various sanitary improvements have been carried out with good effect. This is also the case with London, where the works of the Metropolitan Board are apparently beginning to display their effects. The mortality of London in the summer quarter of last year was at the rate of 24 ; in the summer of this year it is 22.

The districts of the chief towns, containing an estimated population of 11,757,883, have experienced high rates of mortality ; during the three summer quarters the mortality has been at the rate of 24 per 1000, nearly two above the average. In the remaining districts with 9,260,260 inhabitants the mortality declined slightly, and was at the rate of 18 per 1000 in the last summer. This is one over the average of 17. Here also is room for improvement ; but many of the towns are Augean stables, which the municipal authorities have hitherto failed to sweep out. In their limits one death in every four is unnatural, according to the finding of these inflexible facts. The eight English cities and boroughs arranged according to the mortality stand for this particular quarter in the following order of insalubrity ; Bristol 20, London 22, Birmingham 23, Salford 30, Hull 30, Leeds 32, Manchester 33, Liverpool 34.

The Registrars mention many outbreaks of scarlatina, and epidemics of fever in some of its forms. The high rate of mortality during the three summers is chiefly due to these diseases. Some of the existing sanitary defects are strikingly illustrated by the Registrar of Whitstable in Kent. In Rotherham the deaths were 398 out of a population in 1861 of 44,350. The Registrars call attention to the fever deaths, and to the insufficient supply of water. The mortality is fully accounted for by Dr. Shearman, who explains how the health of the town may be established on solid foundations.

In the face of the cholera epidemic which is gathering in threatening clouds around us, the deaths from that disease and from the allied diarrhœa deserve careful study. Every year since 1837, when the causes of death were first registered, a certain number of deaths from cholera have been recorded in the registers of various districts of the country. Such cases, often called English, but more properly summer cholera, as they are met with all over Europe, prevail chiefly in the three months of July, August, and September. One hundred and thirty-six cholera deaths were registered in London, and in this quarter's notes a certain number are mentioned by the Registrars in every division, except the North Midland. One case at Wilsden in Yorkshire was registered "Asiatic cholera ;" another in the Rillington sub-district, fatal in twenty-four hours, "presented all the features of Asiatic cholera." All such cases are of ordinary occurrence, and are inexplicable by those who deny the spontaneous origin of sporadic cases. The number of cases at Southampton since the end of the quarter leaves no doubt of the appearance of the epidemic form of cholera, which may either pass over England, or develop in the course of the next twelve months its usual destructive tendency.

It is gratifying to know that London and some of the other large towns are now in a far better condition to encounter the epidemic than they were either in 1848–49 or in 1853–54, when the disease killed 55,181 and 24,516 persons of both sexes and of all ranks in England and Wales.

Cholera, like small-pox, is one of those zymotic diseases which exist in all climates : under favourable conditions their products assume an active form, capable of inducing in other bodies the same morbid changes by which they were generated. They establish the kinship of the human race. Every nation is vitally interested in the sanitary condition of every other nation. Hence the endless discussions about contagion, and as regards cholera the futile vexations of quarantine. There are difficulties in the hypothesis, because experiments cannot be performed on human beings as they are in the laboratory of the chemist, or as they may be in veterinary hospitals ; but for all practical purposes it may be assumed that the discharges of patients in the epidemic, either casually touching the mouth, or entering in dust and vapour through air or water, induce diarrhœa or cholera in a certain proportion of those exposed to their influence. Now London was supplied with the sewage water of a river by several companies in 1848–49; all, except one, got their water beyond the reach of the London sewage in 1853–54, and the mortality fell proportionally as the water became purer. At the present time the water of all the companies is comparatively little contaminated by zymotic pollution. The London pumps have also been placed under inspection. The drainage is in rapid progress. Analogy justifies the hope that as the city is purified, and as the means of diffusion are cut off, the destructiveness of the disease will be diminished.

The detection since 1849 of the mode of propagation and of the premonitory stage of cholera by English practitioners are among the greatest triumphs of medical science. For as the surgeon cannot restore the shed blood to the heart, but can tie a ligature round an artery, and stop bleeding, so the physician cannot revivify a man in collapse, or restore the serum of his blood, but he can in nine cases out of ten check diarrhœa turning into cholera.

Cholera throws men into terrible convulsions, and kills half of its victims in twenty-four hours; but there is a merciful warning of its approaches in probably every instance, the neglect of which is fatal. So it is with the epidemic itself in England. It has hitherto commenced the deaths of 159,480 persons of both sexes, were registered in the three months ending on December 31st. The numbers, after adding one third to those of Ireland for defective registration, were: Persons married 146,810; births 250,651; deaths 166,534. The recorded natural increase of population in 92 days was 79,977, or 869 daily. Exclusive of 8,101 foreigners, 36,256 emigrants sailed from these islands in the same period. So about 394 emigrants left daily; and allowing for defects in registration, which has only recently been established in Ireland, the increase at home has been about 520 daily.

The death-rate of the United Kingdom differs little from the average of England and Wales to be here discussed. The several facts concerning the other divisions of the Kingdom are fully set forth in the reports of the Registrar General of Scotland and the Registrar General of Ireland.

The estimated population in 1865 of England, Scotland, and Ireland was 29,772,294. The corrected death-rate of the quarter was 2·219 per cent.

England.—A few fatal cases of epidemic cholera occurred during the quarter in the districts of Southampton and of Portsea Island on the southern coast of England; there was also a slight outbreak in Epping; but the number of deaths by cholera has been inconsiderable, and the epidemic has left no traces.

The mortality was above the average, but it was below that in the corresponding quarter of the previous year. The birth-rate was above the average.

If a high marriage-rate is accepted as an indication of well-being and contentment in the great bulk of the people, the present return is highly satisfactory; for in the last quarter of this year the marriage-rate was unusually, perhaps unprecedentedly, high all over the country.

Marriages.—In the quarter that ended 31st December 1865, there were 113,976 persons married in England. In London the weddings rose from 7856 and 8711 in the December quarter of the two previous years to 9738 in that of last year. In Lancashire and Cheshire, which together contain a population not much exceeding the metropolitan, the marriages in the same three periods were 7635, 7253, and 8583. In the Northern Counties they were 2917, 3173, and 3284. In Monmouthshire and Wales 3329, 3416, and 3552. In Yorkshire 5659, 6027, and 6285.

Taking a few districts as examples, the marriages in the three December quarters of 1863, 1864, and 1865 were in Kensington 505, 555, and 712. In Marylebone 478, 524, and 599. In Pancras 554, 643, and 665. In Islington 353, 422, and 525. In Hackney 258, 281, and 371. In Shoreditch 560, 607, and 599. In Bethnal-green 360, 420, and 519. In Lambeth 624, 669, and 798. The returns show continued prosperity in the seats of the woollen trade. In Bradford the marriages in the same three corresponding quarters were 633, 635, and 677. In Leeds they were 525, 517, and 603.

The marriage-rate per annum, in the December quarter of 1865, was 2·146. This result represents the proportion of persons married to a hundred in the population. The average of ten corresponding quarters was 1·98 per cent. Weddings are always the most frequent in the Christmas quarter, and in that of 1864 the marriage-rate was 2·022; but within the range of the comparison, viz. the ten years 1856–65, a rate as high as 2·1 per cent. is without any example, with the single exception of that which is supplied by the present return.

Births.—179,010 births were registered in the last quarter of the year 1865. The birth-rate was 3·370, or ·073 above the average. The daily births were 1946, or 81 per hour. The number has varied little in the last three summers in any of the divisions.

Increase of Population.—As the births were 179,010, the deaths 121,245, the natural increase of population was 57,765 in 92 days, or upon an average 628 daily.

About 15,367 emigrants of English origin sailed in the 92 days from the ports of the United Kingdom at which there are emigration officers; 7,833 sailed to the United States, 823 to the American Colonies, 5,518 to Australia, and 1,193 to other places; on an average 167 English emigrants left the country daily.

Prices, Pauperism, and the Weather.—The price of wheat is rising. It was 38*s.* 5*d.* a quarter in the last three months of 1864, and 44*s.* 10*d.* a quarter in the last three months of 1865. The rise is nearly 17 per cent. on the low price of 1864. Beef by the carcase in London was on an average 5⅝*d.* per lb.; about ⅛*d.* below the price of the corresponding season of 1864; and a halfpenny a pound dearer than it was in the autumn of 1863. The mean of the quoted prices of beef ranged from $4\frac{1}{4}d.$ to $7d.$ a pound; mutton from $5\frac{1}{2}d.$ to $8\frac{1}{4}d.$ in the last three months. The average price of mutton in the last three autumns was $6d.$, $6\frac{1}{4}d.$, and $6\frac{7}{8}d.$ a pound. The rise in the price of beef was 10 per cent., of mutton 15 per cent., in two years. This was partly the result of panic, and of interference with the supply of the markets, as the destruction of stock had not been considerable when the prices rose; and the rise itself was anticipated and augmented by the extra profits of the butchers.

The best potatoes at the waterside market, Southwark, sold at prices ranging from $60s.$ to $90s.$ a ton; from $3s.$ to $4s.$ $6d.$ the hundredweight. The prices are much lower than they were in the autumn of 1864.

On an average 128,858 paupers received complete relief in the workhouses; 724,792 paupers out of doors received relief sufficient to supply some of their wants, but not enough for subsistence. The numbers relieved in the workhouses scarcely varied; the numbers out of doors fell from 804,940 to 771,908, and to 724,792 in the last three autumnal quarters.

The temperature of the quarter was 46° Fahrenheit, equal to 8° centigrade.

The autumnal season was characterized by high temperature, storms, and a heavy rain-fall. The mean temperature of the air at Greenwich Observatory was 2·3° above the average of the season. The temperature of December there, was nearly as high as that of November; its mean temperature was 3·4° above the average of 94 Decembers. The rain-fall on 47 days was 9·2 inches at the Royal Observatory, or 2·1 inches above the average. The excess of rain fell in October, when the fall was 5·9 inches; in December the fall was only 0·9 inch, or full an inch below the average.

The rain-fall determines to some extent the water supply, and the excess in October made up the deficiency in the early part of the year. The rain-fall depends upon a great number of conditions, and consequently varies in every part of the country. Thus 20·2 inches of rain fell at Allenheads, 19·1 at Truro, and only 5·8 inches at Liverpool Observatory. The average rain-fall at Mr. Glaisher's 50 stations was 11·4 inches; which is equivalent to 1,151 tons of rain per acre, or to 42,961 million tons on the whole area of England and Wales. If the country ever suffers from the want of water, it is from defective storage or defective distribution. In the mountainous regions the annual rain-fall in some places has been found to amount to 190 inches: it would be a great advantage to get the water of the hills unpolluted for the supply of men and domestic animals in the plains.

Deaths ; and State of the Public Health.—The threats which were held over our heads of a new form of fever, the invasion of two points of the southern coast by epidemic cholera, which has ravaged the continent, and the prevalence of cattle plague all over England, led us to await the result of the returns with some anxiety.

It is gratifying under these circumstances to find that the mortality has been lower than it was in the autumn of 1864, and has been only ·104 above the autumnal average.

121,245 deaths were registered in the quarter, and the mortality was at the rate of 2·283 per cent. annually.

In the districts of the chief towns the mortality was at the rate of 2·565 per cent., or ·13 above the average.

The mortality in the country districts was, as usual, lower than the mortality in the town districts ; it was at the rate of 1·923 per cent., and only ·04 above the average of those districts.

Thus the rate of mortality in the country districts was about 19, in the town districts nearly 26, and in the kingdom generally nearly 23 per 1000 living.

The mortality was lowest in the South-western Counties (19), highest in the North-western Counties (29) ; thus the annual rate was 10 per thousand higher in Lancashire and Cheshire round the Mersey than it was in the counties between the Bristol Channel and the channel which divides England from France.

It is gratifying to find that the mortality rate of London (24) is lower by 2 in 1000 than it was (26) in the autumn quarter of the previous year.

The mortality has been excessively high through the year in prosperous Yorkshire ; it is still 2 above the county average (23), but it is somewhat lower than it was in the autumn of the previous year.

As a general rule the mortality has been higher than their average in the counties north of the Dee and of the Humber, and lower than the average in the counties of Wales and of the Midland and Southern region of England, around the basins of the Severn, Trent, and Thames.

The great towns of the United Kingdom may be arranged thus in the order of the autumnal mortality rate per 1000 : Bristol 24, London 24, Dublin 26, Birmingham 26, Edinburgh 29, Hull 29, Leeds 33, Salford 34, Manchester 36, Glasgow 40, Liverpool 41. The mortality in 63 of the country districts was 18 during the same season.

It is sad to see this great sacrifice of human life in so many of our large towns, where the productive industry of the country is most active, and where the science of the country is applied to almost every purpose, except the maintenance of the hygienic conditions on which men can live in health.

It is satisfactory to observe at the same time traces of dawning light. London has undertaken great sewage works; Manchester is already supplied with abundance of water; and we may hope to see ere long a generous rivalry in our cities in the race of improvement. When pure water on the constant supply system is brought to every house, and the dirt in cesspools, which is the source of zymotic disease, is carried away to fructify the soil, the municipal authorities will have laid the solid foundations of the sanitary edifice. The inspection of articles of food by health officers, measures for the regulation of lodging-houses or of any of the houses in which fever is generated, and several other duties they may also undertake; but after all this is done, the crowning success must be achieved by the people themselves. Temperance, self-control, and skill in protecting themselves and their children from evil are every day called into requisition. The preservation of life depends upon careful attention to small things, and should be taught as a part of common education.

Mr. Leigh's able Sanitary Report on Manchester shows how much has been done, and how much remains to be done, in that city (see below). It is to be regretted that Manchester has yet no health officer, but it is indebted to the Statistical and the Sanitary Societies for the publication of much valuable practical information.

This country was threatened not only by cholera but by yellow fever in the year. The Hecla, from Cuba, laden with copper ore, entered Swansea Harbour, lying between a low inhabited island and the town, at 9 A.M. on 9th September, and landed James Saunders, sick; he died in the course of the day. On the 23d of September the Registrar of Swansea received the certificate of the death of John Jesse by yellow fever, and this certificate was sent by the Registrar-General to the Council Office, who immediately, through Dr. Buchanan, instituted a searching inquiry into the subject, of which the importance was evident. Twenty-nine persons who had been in or near the Hecla were attacked by the fever, and thirteen persons died of it in Swansea, one in the Eleanor sloop, and one in Llanelly. The disease did not spread by contagion, but it was apparently induced by the diffusion of the fever miasm among the people. Judicious measures were taken for removing the Hecla from the harbour, and for purifying her foul interior. The last death by yellow fever occurred on 8th October.

In this case, as well as in the invasion of Southampton by cholera, the importance of attention to the hygienic condition both of our merchant vessels and our seaports is clearly seen; for a foul ship instead of merchandise carries from land to land the seeds of depopulating diseases, and a foul seaport supplies the soil in which they rankly germinate.

REPORT on the Sanitary Condition of MANCHESTER, by JOHN LEIGH, Esq., Registrar of the Deansgate Sub-district.

During the quarter ending 31st December 1863 there were 34 deaths from scarlatina, and, including whooping-cough amongst the infectious diseases, 51 deaths from this class altogether.

In the next quarter ending 31st March 1864, 21 deaths from scarlatina and 49 from all infectious diseases.

In the quarter ending 30th June 1864, 18 deaths from scarlatina and 31 from all nfectious diseases.

In the quarter ending 30th September 1864, 15 deaths from scarlatina, 13 from measles, and 8 from fever; 41 from all diseases of an infectious character, and 61 from diarrhœa.

In the last quarter of 1864 there were 10 deaths from scarlatina, 10 from measles, 13 from fever, 4 from small-pox; 41 from all infectious diseases.

In the first quarter of 1865 scarlatina had vanished from the district; there was not a single death from this disease, and only 3 from measles; but there were 10 deaths from small-pox, and 11 from typhus.

In the next quarter ending 30th June there were 7 deaths from fever, 7 from measles, 3 from small-pox, only 2 from scarlatina, and 1 from whooping-cough; 21 deaths from all infectious diseases. There were 17 deaths from diarrhœa.

In the quarter ending 30th September there were 15 deaths from fever, 25 from all infectious diseases, and 71 from diarrhœa.

These numbers represent the deaths occurring within the district. Many cases were taken to the hospitals, and either terminated in recovery or swelled the mortality of other districts. The figures suffice, however, to show how zymotic diseases replace each other. Beginning with scarlatina in the December quarter of 1863, we find it declining through the three succeeding quarters under a gradual rise of measles, typhus, and small-pox; measles next, to a great extent, giving way to fever and small-pox. The latter is now scarcely found in the district, and fever is in the ascendant. There can be no doubt that scarlatina, measles, small-pox, and whooping-cough, whatever or whenever their remote origin may have been, are at this day communicable and perhaps in all cases communicated by infection. I have no knowledge of ever having personally met with a case of any of these diseases of spontaneous origin. Of true typhus probably the same may be said; whilst the united testimony of observers of the very erratic course of cholera points to the same conclusion respecting it. I very carefully traced nearly every case of cholera during the last two invasions of this disease in Manchester, and invariably I found there had been direct communication with infected persons or an infected atmosphere. I entertain no more doubt of the infectious nature of cholera than of that of small-pox or scarlatina. Its course can be accounted for in no other way. Under the threatening prospect of a fresh invasion it is best to look the disease fairly in the face, and not, under the fear of being considered alarmists, to ignore its nature, and neglect the means of breaking the force of the attack.

It may perhaps be granted, that the noisome pent-up atmosphere of courts and alleys, of overcrowded and unventilated rooms, the emanations of churchyards, the effluvia of unsluiced sewers and drains, the decomposing offal of slaughter-houses, and the disgusting exhalations from manufactories of animal matters, do not generate small-pox, measles, or scarlatina.

Cholera is probably a disease of our time, originating in the filth and dirty habits of the devotees who throng the banks of the Jumna and the Ganges, assisted by the miasms and putrescence of those polluted rivers. It is doubtful too whether in our time typhus does not absolutely originate in the ill conditions of our crowded towns. Be this as it may, nothing is more certain than that the ordinary unfavourable conditions of large towns, with their festering grave-yards, decomposing offal, noisome exhalations of tallow-chandleries, and other manufactories of animal matters, stenches of sewers and drains, and stagnant atmosphere of courts and alleys, are the predisposing causes of diseases, especially infectious diseases. If they do not actually produce disease they so reduce the tone and strength of the population, so vitiate their blood and exalt their susceptibility of deleterious influences, that a constant tendency exists to take on diseased action, whether in the form of typhus, scarlatina, small-pox, or cholera. A state of chronic disorganization is always attracting the flying bands of the enemy.

It is not a question of food and wages; the day-labourer in the country who earns his ten or twelve shillings a week, and tastes animal food but once in that week, is ruddy, strong, and healthy, compared with the highly-paid and well fed artisan who works in a crowd of fellow workmen and sleeps in the narrow street or confined court where his house stands, and whose cadaverous looks tell the tale of his surroundings.

No doubt the artisan is exposed to temptations and has facilities of indulgence which do not fall to the countryman; but the pale skins of town children, their soft and flabby muscles, and protuberant abdomens, mark them out strongly from their rustic compeers.

As a rule, a child in the country gets its teeth easily; in the town it perishes in too many instances of convulsions during the process of dentition. During the last quarter 30 children have died from convulsions in this district alone, and 85 during the year. Poison in the air, laudanum in the food, the wonder is, not that so many die, but that so many live.

No town in England is better and more abundantly supplied with good and pure water than Manchester. It comes from the mountains of sandy grit that separate Lancashire from Yorkshire. Soft, yet sparkling and pure, it is equally adapted for drinking, for culinary or washing purposes. The streets of Manchester are admirably paved and sewered, and are kept constantly clean by an organised body of scavengers. There are no pools of stagnant water, no collections of filth allowed to lie and rot in the streets. To the casual observer only the atmosphere is dark and foul. What is it then that makes Manchester so unhealthy a town? Why should its artisan be ever pale and sallow and unhealthy? He is better fed and clothed than his brother in the country. His drink is pure as at the fountain. The children have not learned intemperate habits, and yet are as sickly as their parents. I live in one of those fine wide streets still left in Manchester for private residences. My house is large; the rooms spacious; there is a large piece of open ground connected with the house, the windows are regularly and frequently opened, and the house well ventilated by large fires kept up for the purpose. Yet I am obliged to have a house in the country for my family. In the town my children grow pale, their appetites fail, they become thin and listless, and ready to be the prey of active disease, and yet, all circumstances, save atmosphere alone, are the same as those of the country. Close to my town house, on the west side, is a large grave-yard, in which interments are even yet made daily. On one side of the street, separated by a small interval, is a large tallow-melting work recently established; on the other side an ancient and time-honoured tallow-chandlery with its vested right of poisoning the neighbours; at the top of the street are half a dozen slaughter-houses, in two of which some three hundred pigs are killed and dressed weekly, the sewers getting the benefit of the effete matters. Add to the noxious products which load the atmosphere from these sources, the black out-pourings from innumerable chimneys, and a tolerable conception of the sanitary state of the neighbourhood will be obtained.

The unhealthiness of Manchester is due to its vitiated atmosphere; we have had an unusually dry season, and an extraordinary amount of sickness, with excessive mortality. Nothing but the constant rain we have in ordinary years makes a residence within its bounds tolerable. The air is well washed often, and we survive. No plant will live in Manchester without constant washing; the leaves become coated with soot, the stomata choked and closed; and respiration ceases after a few hours. And that which destroys the life of a plant is breathed by the whole inhabitants of Manchester. This is the life-giving fluid on which they are to live and work. Let any one examine the lungs after death of a person who has been long resident in Manchester, and in the bronchial glands he will find a fluid substance, inhaled soot, as black and thick as ink. Besides the black carbonaceous particles, there are salts of ammonia, and other irritating matters which are carried with the inhaled air into the finer bronchial tubes, and produce a constant irritation, which undoubtedly has much to do with the large amount of phthisical and bronchial disease ever present in this great town.

Such nuisances are within the control of the authorities. Why should not the smoke be burned? Why should not the slaughter-houses and the noxious manufactories be removed to one outskirt of the town, where already many of them are situated? To a large extent they would neutralize the bad effects of each other. The chlorine and muriatic acid and sulphurous acid so largely developed in our vast chemical manufactures would destroy the animal and vegetable matters that now pollute the centre of the town; and at all events there would be ample space for diffusion of the true gases, and the distribution by the winds of the now concentrated vapours.

We have fever amongst us, and cholera at our doors. We know how fatally these are promoted and extended by the evils which we see and recognize, and yet fear to touch. Unhappily the value of human life is outweighed by other considerations.

The evils of a polluted city atmosphere exist in concentrated force in the courts, alleys, and confined over-crowded rooms in which so many of our labouring population live; and these are more difficult to deal with. The air is stagnant, and as the courts and alleys are closed at one end (blind alleys) there is no possibility of ventilation unless artificial openings be made. But a foul atmosphere is not disagreeable to a large class of working people, who enter it with indifference; and it is almost impossible to get them to open their windows. Though they are amply supplied with water, extreme uncleanliness of person, dress, and home is also matter for much regret. For this no remedy exists but education; and the clergy of all denominations hold a power which they might exercise most beneficially in the inculcation of sanitary lessons. At the present time benevolence can hardly find a nobler field.

Dirt and squalor are the enemies of religion as much as of health.

Health of London in 1865.

He who wishes to study some of the striking properties of the English race can scarcely find a better field than the area extending a few miles around St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abbey. Here is the metropolis to which emigrants come daily from every county of the United Kingdom, and from which the enterprizing start to every province of the Empire. Besides the ebb and flow of migration, birth and death succeed each other in waves of thousands every week. And amidst all the changes the population increases; so that streets, once empty lanes, are full of life; and within the present bounds the population of men, women, and children of every rank, from the casual mendicant through all degrees of working men, up to the highest classes in art, intellect, and wealth, amount to three millions.

The population of London within the registration limits is by estimate 2,993,513 but beyond this central mass there is a ring of life growing rapidly, and extending along railway lines, over a circle of 15 miles radius from Charing Cross. The population within that circle, patrolled by the metropolitan police, is about 3,463,771.

The population of London within the registration limits increased at the rate of 1·73 per cent. per annum; the outer population at the rate of 2·77 per cent.

The metropolitan tables of the year 1865 are based on the returns of 135 registrars, and apply to 2,993,513 people, who are nearly all under the observation of medical men. The registered births were 2054, the deaths 1414 weekly, on an average, by all diseases and injuries. The Tables supply data for determining how much the phenomena of life and death are influenced by the surges of epidemics, by atmospheric pressure, by heat and cold, by fog and sunshine, by rain and by waters varying in their chemical as well as pathological effects, within certain limits. To extend those limits the area of observation must be extended.

This has been done. In the year 1865 the registrars of Liverpool, Manchester, Salford, Birmingham, Leeds, Bristol, and Hull supplied with the most credible punctuality weekly returns of the births and deaths and epidemical diseases reigning in those great cities and boroughs. The Registrars General of Scotland and Ireland readily contributed to the undertaking, and sent weekly the returns for Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Dublin. Thus the system of weekly observation extended over a wider area, and over 5,690,617 people, exposed to a great variety of physical and social influences.

The laws of zymotic diseases demand for their elimination a still wider area; and as observatories are wisely established in the great cities of Europe to promote the science of astronomy, so it appears desirable to seek by the same methods of exact observation to advance the science of human life.

The capital of the Austrian Empire, has, through Dr. Glatter, contributed regularly to the series of observations; and the deaths have been published here weekly. New York already publishes an imperfect weekly Table. Berlin will probably not long lag behind Vienna; and if Paris once begins, its example will be followed by Madrid, Florence, and St. Petersburgh. We shall then have hygienic observatories in all the great cities of civilized nations, where scientific men will be constantly on the look-out to give due notice of the rise and progress of diseases either injurious or fatal to the human race.

It is a common nation on the Continent that the publication of weekly tables, such as those of London, may shake the nerves of the people, and lead to explosions of terror in times of epidemic. But experience proves that the publication of the facts quiets instead of disturbing the popular mind, and while it reveals the exact extent of danger, robs it of the halo of alarm with which the imagination surrounds indefinite pestilences, walking abroad by noonday. The panic in Paris, Marseilles, and Naples from cholera last year had no parallel in London in 1854; and if weekly Tables had been published in Paris that city would probably have enjoyed the same comparative immunity as London in 1865; for the London Tables, demonstrating the diffusion of cholera by the wells and by the water companies, led the latter, under legislative pressure, to seek purer sources of supply; while Paris was left behind in this work of improvement, and unnumbered thousands of the people perished.

The Rinderpest has created an alarm which could never have arisen in England if people knew the amount of stock, and its mortality, in ordinary times, as well as the laws which govern epizootics precisely as they govern epidemics. It is an exact reproduction of the Continental panic in times of cholera, and enables us to understand it.

The seasons of the year 1865 were in many respects remarkable. The winter was cold, and February and March seemed insensible to the growing power of the summer. The mean temperature of each of the first three months lay between 36° and 37°. The mean night temperature of those months was below or little above the freezing point of water; bronchitis was unusually fatal; and the rate of mortality in the coldest weeks of January and February rose a fourth above the annual average. The temperature rose in April and May, and was several degrees above the average of those months. The temperature of the air made a sudden start in April, and its mean ranged, up to May 20th, from 49° to 56°; its weekly mean extremes from 40° at night to 72° in the day. Then after May 20th, through June, the mean temperature was high, and it rose still higher in July, reading 66°. The temperature began to rise rapidly on the 20th of June; and the thermometer touched 88° in the air, and 148° in the sun, on June 23d. The deaths from diarrhœa suddenly increased in this week to 187; in successive weeks they rose to 184, to 301 in July, and then slowly declined through August and September.

The deaths from summer cholera had not exceeded one weekly, but in the third week of June 3 died, and the deaths increased weekly until 23 were registered in the last week of July; then the deaths gradually fell off, and the deaths by cholera in the year were 193. These included one or more persons who were attacked in Paris. A few cases of Asiatic cholera, it will be recollected, occurred in Southampton, and at Epping in the neighbourhood of London. Scarlatina became more fatal in London than it had been in the two last weeks of June.

It is worthy of note that the cattle plague was first observed at Lambeth on June 24th, at Islington on June 27th, at Hackney on the 28th, on July 1st in Whitechapel; by the 3d of July it had attacked 40 cows in various places, and had killed half of them.* According to the official returns, 7238 cattle were attacked before December 30th by Rinderpest in the metropolitan police district; the poleaxe was liberally used; 3103 of the attacked were killed, 2218 were slaughtered healthy by way of precaution, and 3263 died of the disease. Thus 5321 were slaughtered, 3263 died, 588 remained sick on December 30th; and it would appear that the "stamping out" is only partially successful when a large proportion of the cattle are killed either by the butchers or by the disease. During the whole of this period the milk must in many cases have been drawn from infected cows before the secretion of milk had ceased; and it is to be feared that their carcases were often sold as meat. Lancisi found that such meat induced diarrhœa; and though the effect of the cattle plague on the health of the population of London is not yet apparent, the facts must be carefully watched.

The temperature of every month of the year after March, except August, was above the average of 24 years, and in two weeks of September the heat was tropical; the mean of the highest daily air temperatures of the two weeks ending September 16th was 80·5°; the highest air temperature of Friday, September 8th, was 86°; while the temperature of the thermometer in the sun was 131°, and the warmth of the waters of the Thames rose to 68°. This heat produced no sensible effect on the mortality. There was no rain in either of those weeks. Towards the end of October 5·2 inches of rain fell in three weeks; and thus, notwithstanding previous droughts, the rain-fall of the year, as well as the temperature exceeded the average.

The annual rate of mortality in London was 2·433 during 26 years; and the mortality in the year 1865 of extreme heat and extreme cold was 2·456. There was a sensible decline in the mortality of the districts south of the Thames.

The mortality in the whole of the great city population of the United Kingdom was at the rate of 2·718 per cent. in 1865.

* In estimating the number of men in the Army, Navy, and Merchant Service abroad, a certain proportion belonging to foreign countries and the colonies has been excluded. In 1811 the troops and seamen were 640,500, but as this number included natives of colonies and foreign parts, only 502,536 were taken.

[The above numbers (1801–61) have been deduced by raising the enumerated population of the United Kingdom, including the islands in the British Seas, (see Table 9. p. 84. of Vol. III. Census of England and Wales, 1861,) up to the middle of the respective Census years. In 1866 and 1867 the numbers have been estimated by adding the population enumerated in the islands in the British Seas in 1861, and the number of men in the Army, Navy, and Merchant Service abroad, (see Table 3. p. 81. Vol. III. Census 1861,) to the population for 1866 and 1867 returned in Table 55. pp. lxiv–lxv.]

ENGLISH LIFE TABLE.

THE following Tables (lxxiv-xci) are extracted from the volume entitled "The English Life Table,"* and will be found of frequent use, as the Life Table is the foundation of vital statistics, and serves to solve all the common problems involved in the doctrines of the probabilities and of the duration of life. Those interested in insurance will resort to the volume in question for special information on that subject, as far as single male or female lives or joint lives of the two sexes are concerned. The subjoined extracts from the Introduction to the Life Table explain the construction and use of the Tables now reprinted.

The English Life Table No. 3. consists of three parts, or three Life Tables, each of seven columns; the first part for Persons consisting of such proportions at each age of the two sexes as are produced by the births; the second part for Males; and the third part for Females. The base of the (1) Table for Persons is 1,000,000 children born alive; and as boys and girls were born in England during the period of observation in the proportions of 511,745 boys to 488,255 girls, these numbers were made respectively the bases of (2) the Male Life Table, and (3) of the Female Life Table.

In the Synoptical Table (pp. lxxvi-lxxvii), the numbers of the males and females living and dying at each year of age are given as they would exist in a population under the law of birth and mortality, found by direct observation to prevail in England and Wales, undisturbed by emigration, by excess of births over deaths, or by any other element of that kind.

The males, we find, if there is no emigration, exceed the females in number in infancy, in childhood, and in manhood up to the age of 53, when the women after the age of childbearing enjoy a firmer hold on life, and die at a lower rate than the men; so that the number of women of 53 and upwards exceeds the number of men of the corresponding ages. The males are to the females of all ages as 20,426,138 to 20,432,046; thus proving decisively that the disparity in the numbers of the two sexes of the English population is due exclusively to emigration.

The Male and Female Life Tables were constructed independently; that of the Persons was obtained by combining the other two in one.

The column $d_x$ (p. lxxiv) expresses the deaths which occur in the years after the ages $x$; thus, by the Table, 5,583 persons die in the year after the precise age 20, so they are all of the age 20 and under 21, or in their 21st year.

* English Life Table. Tables of Lifetimes, Annuities, and Premiums; with an Introduction by William Farr, M.D., F.R.S. Published by authority of the Registrar General of England. London, 1864; Longman and Co.

The number in the column ($d_{20}$) is derived from $l_0$, the basis with which it is connected by the law of mortality prevailing at that and in all preceding ages.

The Table represents a generation of 1,000,000 persons, and it will be observed that in the first year 149,493 die, in the second 53,680, the numbers decreasing every year until the age of 13; 3,382 die in their 14th year (13–14); after the age of puberty the deaths at each year of age increase until 15,469 die in the year 73–74. Great numbers die after that age, but the deaths at the advanced ages decrease rapidly, and 92 die at the age of 100, one at the age 108. So 109 years ($\omega$) is the limit of age by this Table.

The column $l_x$ is taken from the machine logarithms $\lambda\, l_x$; it is the sum of the column $d_x$ added up from the bottom; so $d_x$ is always the difference of $l_x$ and $l_{x+1}$. Thus $l_{x+1} + d_x = l_x$; $d_x = l_x - l_{x+1}$. The values $d_x$ were deduced from the primary column $l_x$.

$P_x$ is usually taken to represent the tabular population living at the age $x$ and under $x + 1$; thus by this Table 600,615 is the normal population of the age 30 and under 31; and it is usually taken as the mean of the numbers by the Table living to 30 and 31; that is, $P_x = \frac{l_x + l_{x+1}}{2} = l_{x+1} + \frac{d_x}{2}$. The series $\lambda\, l_x$ by the machine was calculated with the proper differences, to give the logarithms of the values $l_x$, $l_{x+\frac{1}{4}}$, $l_{x+\frac{1}{2}}$, $l_{x+\frac{3}{4}}$, and $l_{x+1}$; thus, by the Male Table, $l_{30} = 304{,}534$; $l_{30\frac{1}{4}} = 303{,}770$; $l_{30\frac{1}{2}} = 303{,}004$; $l_{30\frac{3}{4}} = 302{,}236$; $l_{31} = 301{,}466$. Here $\frac{304{,}534 + 301{,}466}{2} = 303{,}000$; which differs little at this age from $l_{30\frac{1}{2}} = 303{,}004$. At other ages where the series $d_x$ is varying rapidly, the values $\frac{l_x + l_{x+1}}{2}$ differ more from the value of $l_{x+\frac{1}{2}}$; but the difference is never considerable, so that no error of consequence can be committed by taking $\frac{l_x + l_{x+1}}{2}$ to represent the numbers living through the year of age following $x$. The $l_{x+\frac{1}{2}}$ is, however, preferable to the other, and is probably the most correct; for its logarithm is calculated by the machine as part of the series. The symbol $l_{x+\frac{1}{2}}$ and $P_x$ may for practical purposes be used indiscriminately.

The number of deaths decreases rapidly in each month after birth. The Table of living and the deaths at the end of each month of the first year of life is in itself interesting; it was obtained for each of the first three months directly from the returns; from the aggregate deaths in the second quarter, and in the last two quarters; so the deaths in each of the other nine months were interpolated. The particular value $P_0$ was deduced directly from the 13 values, $l_0 + l_{\frac{1}{12}} + l_{\frac{2}{12}} \ldots\ldots + l_1$.

This Table was calculated from the corrected Births and from the Deaths under 1 year of age. Of 1,000,000 Children born, 953,497 were living at the end of the first month of age, 46,503 having died in the interval, of whom 26,787 were Males and 19,716 were Females; 936,302 were living at the end of the second month, and the deaths in that month were 17,195, of whom 9,640 were Males and 7,555 were Females.

Note.—In determining the decrements of life in the first year for FEMALES two series of observations have been used.

The first series extends over 17 years (1838–54), and represents the deaths at three periods of age under 1 year; viz., 317,733 under 3 months, 123,639 at 3 and under 6 months, and 197,904 at 6 months and under 1 year.

In apportioning the deaths at 0 and under 1 month, 1 and under 2 months, and 2 and under 3 months for the Life Table, the 317,733 deaths under 3 months were proportionally distributed by means of the deaths in each of the first three months of age abstracted for 8 years (1839–46): the results obtained were 191,619 deaths at 0 – 1 month, 73,430 at 1 – 2 months, and 52,684 at 2 and under 3 months.

By subtracting the deaths (317,733, 123,639, and 197,904) thus obtained for the 17 years 1838–54 successively from the Total Births for the 17 years $1837\frac{1}{2}$–$1853\frac{1}{2}$ (=4,745,485), the numbers living at 0 – 3, 3 – 6, 6 – 12, and 12 months are ascertained. The logarithms of these numbers living ($\lambda\, l_{\frac{3}{12}}$, $\lambda\, l_{\frac{6}{12}}$, $\lambda\, l_1$, and $\lambda\, l_{1\frac{1}{4}}$) were used to interpolate the numbers living at 9 months ($= \lambda\, l_{\frac{9}{12}}$); then starting with the basis of the Female Life Table ($\lambda = 5{\cdot}6886465$) at age 0, the numbers living ($l_x$) were obtained at 3, 6, and 9 months by applying the logarithms inserted in the Quarterly Life Table.

To obtain the deaths in each of the first three months of life, where the observations only extended over a period of 8 years (1839–46), the 317,733 deaths in the 17 years 1838–54 under 3 months of age have been proportionally distributed from the observations for the said 8 years, 1839–46, and subsequently by interpolation the numbers living at each month under 1 year of age were obtained.

The decrements of life in the first year for MALES were determined in a precisely similar manner.

$Q_x$ is the sum of the column $P_x$; and in all cases $Q_x = P_x + Q_{x+1}$, and $P_x = Q_x - Q_{x+1}$. The column represents—to the basis 1,000,000—(1) the tabular numbers living of every age $x$ and upwards; also (2) the number of years of life which the $l_x$ persons of the age will enjoy; so that $\frac{Q_x}{l_x}$ = the mean afterlifetime at the age $x$.

$Y_x$ is a column which I have added to the Life Table, to extend its use to the solution of problems involving the ages of the living.

$Y_x = Y_{x+1} + Q_{x+1} + \frac{1}{2} P_x$; and $\frac{Y_x}{Q_x}$ = the mean afterlifetime of all the persons of the age x and upwards; also $x + \frac{Y_x}{Q_x}$ = the mean age of the persons living of the age $x$ and upwards. Thus the men of the age of 40 and upwards are of the average age of 56·26; they will live 16·26 years longer, and die at the average age 72·52 years.

The numbers and logarithms of the columns $l_x$, $Q_x$, and $Y_x$ are given for males (pp. lxxx-lxxxi) and females (pp. lxxxiv-lxxxv).

The annual rate of mortality $\frac{d_x}{P_x}$ = at all ages after the first $\frac{d_x}{l_{x+\frac{1}{2}}} = m_x$ was calculated for males and females; and 100 $m_x$ or the mortality per cent. is printed (p. lxxxvi). The reciprocal $\left(\frac{P_x}{d_x}\right)$ gives the number living at the age $x$ to $x + 1$ out of which one death occurs annually. Thus at the age 20 (and under 21) the mortality is at the rate of one death in 120 men; or (100 $m_{20}$) = ·832 per cent. By inserting two ciphers after the decimal point we have $m_{20}$ = ·00832; and on passing the decimal point one to the right, 8·32 is the mortality per 1,000, which is a convenient unit for several of the intermediate ages of life.

Two columns of the same Table show the rate of mortality among males and females of the age $x$ and upwards; thus, males of the age of 20 and upwards die at the rate of 1 in 39·48 annually; women of the age of 60 and upwards die at the rate of 1 in 14·34.

1 in 39·91 males and 1 in 41·85 females of all ages die annually in a stationary population, under the English law of mortality.

These numbers also represent the mean lifetime ($E_x$), which is 39·91 years for males, and 41·85 years for females, when $x = 0$. The afterlifetime is usually called the Expectation of Life at the age $x$; but this common expression of three words is admitted to be open to objection. The mean afterlifetime is obtained by dividing the tabular years of life ($Q_x$) which are enjoyed after any age $x$, by the tabular numbers $l_x$ living at that age.

$Q_x$ is the sum of the values $l_{x+\frac{1}{2}}$, from any given age after $x = 1$, to the end of the Table; and $L_x = l_x + l_{x+1} + l_{x+2} + l_{x+n} \ldots l_\omega$. Now it has been shown that $l_{x+\frac{1}{2}}$ differs little at any age from $\frac{l_x + l_{x+1}}{2}$ $\therefore$ $L_x - \frac{1}{2} l_x = \frac{1}{2} l_x + l_{x+1} + l_{x+2} \ldots + l_\omega$, differs little from $Q_x$; and $E_x = \frac{Q_x}{l_x} = \frac{L_x}{l_x} - \frac{1}{2}$ nearly; these two are the limits of the expression for the afterlifetime, which for persons is 40·86 at birth by the first, and 40·89 by the last formula. The deaths in each year of age are by the last formula assumed to take place at equal intervals, and the living during that short interval to decrease in arithmetical progression; while in the former formula the living in the middle of the year are taken to represent the mean numbers living through the year. The lifetime in years is not greater than the one, nor less than the other number.

The Table (pp. lxxxviii-lxxxix) shows the mean afterlifetime of males of the age $x$ and upwards; that is, of males of the age of $x$, and of every higher age. At birth it is 31·77 years; and that is also the mean age of the living in a normal population having equal numbers of births and of deaths, subject at all ages to the English law of mortality.

The equation $E'_0 = \frac{Y_0}{Q_0}$ represents the mean ages of the living, for $Y_0$ is the sum of the series $\frac{1}{2} Q_0 + Q_1 \ldots + Q_\omega$; which is again, as may be found by substituting for $Q_x$ its values in $P_x$, the equivalent of $\frac{1}{2} P_0 + 1\frac{1}{2} P_1 + 2\frac{1}{2} P_2 + 3\frac{1}{2} P_3 \ldots + (n + \frac{1}{2}) P_n$ carried to the extreme limits of the Table. Now the mean age of the living at the age 0 and under 1 is nearly $\frac{1}{2} P_0$; at 1 and under 2 it may be taken at $1\frac{1}{2}$ years; consequently $1\frac{1}{2} \times P_1 =$ the number of years that the persons of the age 1 and under 2 have lived. The same reasoning will apply at 20, or at any other age $n$; and the sum of the series $(n + \frac{1}{2}) l_{n+\frac{1}{2}}$, in which $n$ is made to vary from 0 to 109, will be $= Y_0 =$ sum of the number of years that the whole normal population has lived. But the numbers who have lived $Y_0$ years are $Q_0$; and $\frac{Y_0}{Q_0} =$ the average age. In like manner it may be shown that $Y_x = \frac{1}{2} l_{x+\frac{1}{2}} + 1\frac{1}{2} l_{x+1\frac{1}{2}} + 2\frac{1}{2} l_{x+2\frac{1}{2}} + 3\frac{1}{2} l_{x+3\frac{1}{2}} + 4\frac{1}{2} l_{x+4\frac{1}{2}} \ldots\ldots$ to tabular limit $=$ the number of years that all the persons $(Q_x)$ have lived over age $x$. And $xQ_x + Y_x =$ the total number of years that the $Q_x$ persons have lived; $\therefore \frac{xQ_x + Y_x}{Q_x} = x + \frac{Y_x}{Q_x} = x + E'_x =$ mean age of all the persons living of the age of $x$ and upwards.

$Y_x$ also represents the number of years of life that $Q_x$ persons of the tabular ages will live; and $\frac{Y_x}{Q_x} =$ their mean afterlifetime. It has been shown that $Q_x =$ the number of years that $l_x$ persons of the age $x$ will live; and $Q_{x+1} =$ the number of years that $l_{x+1}$ persons will live; $\therefore (l_x + l_{x+1})$ persons will live $(Q_x + Q_{x+1})$ years; and $\frac{1}{2}(l_x + l_{x+1})$ persons $= P_x$ will live $\frac{1}{2}(Q_x + Q_{x+1})$ years. In like manner it may be shown that $\frac{l_{x+1} + l_{x+2}}{2} = P_{x+1}$ persons will live $\frac{1}{2}(Q_{x+1} + Q_{x+2})$ years; and as the sum of the series $P_x$ from any given age to the end of the Table is $Q_x$, so the sum of the series $\frac{1}{2} Q_x + Q_{x+1} + Q_{x+2} + Q_{x+3} \ldots\ldots + Q_\omega = Y_x =$ the number of years of life that the $Q_x$ persons will enjoy; $\therefore E'_x = \frac{Y_x}{Q_x} =$ the mean afterlifetime of all the persons of the ages $x + \frac{Y_x}{Q_x}$. By adding their afterlifetime to the age, the mean age at death is found to be $x + 2E'_x = x + 2\frac{Y_x}{Q_x}$.

The constituent individuals of a population are its elements; and the population is normal when its elements, arranged in corresponding groups, are in the same proportions as the elements of the Life Table. The births = deaths in the same time; to a given number born, the living at each year of age are in the same proportion as $P_x$ to $l_0$; the rates of mortality are the same; the population lives a number of years after each age, represented by the calculated lifetime.

In a normal population there is an indissoluble connexion between (1) the numbers living, (2) the mean lifetime, (3) the births, (4) the deaths, (5) the rate of mortality, (6) the probable duration of life. Thus by the Life Table of Persons 1,000,000 annual births imply 1,000,000 annual deaths; sustaining a population of 40,858,184, of whom 20,426,138 are males, 20,432,046 are females; half of the persons living 45 years = the probable lifetime; and the mean lifetime being 40·858184 or nearly 41 years; that is = the mean age at death = the number of years of life falling to the share of the children born. To 41 persons living there is one birth, one death, annually; the rate of mortality is 1 in 41; and 41 is the mean duration of life.

It has been shown that the rate of mortality involves three elements,—time, numbers living, numbers dying; thus, if out of 102 living men of a given age 4 die at equal intervals in the year, 98 will live to the end of the year; so $\frac{98}{102}$ = the probability of living a year; $\frac{4}{102}$ = the probability of dying in the same time; and by hypothesis the 102 men in the year enjoy among them $\frac{102 + 98}{2}$ = 100 years of life; now the years of life to be passed by the survivors in the next year will, if 4 die in the year, be 96, and thus the years of life will accumulate year by year, until the last life shall expire. All the years of life belong to the 102 men; and dividing the said years of life by 102 the mean afterlifetime is determined. Thus the units of the numbers that express living men, men dying, and years of life, are produced by men living a definite number of years and then dying.

By retaining one unit of time, and one living, in all cases, the variations of the m express the variations in the rate of mortality. By fixing the numbers living, and taking the death as a unit, the mean interval of time —which varies—between each death, will express the velocity of dying in the scale of time, under different conditions; and by making the living man a unit, the death becomes a unit, and the variations in the years of lifetime express the different degrees of longevity. By making the time a unit (one year), and the death a unit, the variations in the numbers living, out of which 1 death occurs annually—or the relative amount of resistance to death by life is expressed—under the given conditions. One death in one year to 41 living, implies a mean lifetime of 41 years. It was shown before that 41 persons living through one year enjoy the same number of years of life as one person living forty-one years.

In a population which is disturbed by emigration, by immigration, by varying excesses of births over deaths or of deaths over births, or by pestilence, the mean age of the dying ($G_0$) can be determined from the registers by arranging the deaths consecutively in a column ($d_x$) at the various ages, and drawing up from this column the columns corresponding to $l_x$ and $L_x$ or even to $Q_x$. The table thus constructed gives the mean age of the dying in the year or years, as this property depends solely on the fact that when the figures are so arranged and related, $G_0 = \frac{L_0}{l_0} - \frac{1}{2} = \frac{Q_0}{l_0} = \frac{1}{l_0}\left(\frac{1}{2} d_0 + 1\frac{1}{2} d_1 + 2\frac{1}{2} d_2 + 3\frac{1}{2} d_3 \ldots + (\omega + \frac{1}{2}) d_\omega\right)$ $= \frac{1}{l_0}(d_1 + 2 d_2 + 3 d_3 + 4 d_4 \ldots \omega d_\omega) + \frac{1}{2}$.

The two latter series ($d_x$) express evidently the number of years lived by the persons dying at all ages $= l_0$. But people are born in one place, die in another, and moreover the number of births is scarcely ever the same as the number of deaths. So there is no necessary connexion between the ages of these persons at death, the rate of mortality, the probability of living, or the mean duration of the lives of children born and living in precisely the same circumstances. The results nearly coincide sometimes with those deduced, on correct principles, from a Life Table; and the early Life Tables of Halley, Simpson, Dr. Price, and others, were constructed from the Burial Registers of Breslau, London, and Northampton, without any reference to the living. The errors of such Tables are illustrated in the Appendix to the 8th Report of the Registrar General, where the old incorrect Northampton Table is compared with a new Table for Northampton constructed on nearly the same plan as the English Table.

The mean age of those who died in England in the 17 years 1838–54 was 29·4; whereas the mean lifetime of children born in England during the same period is 40·9 years by the Life Table. This reduction of the age at death, 11·5 years below the mean lifetime, is the result of the introduction of an excess of young lives; as in addition to the 380,631 births to balance the 380,631 deaths, 191,068, making 571,699 children in the whole, were born annually and thrown into the population. The mean age of the dying = the mean age to which people live in a normal population; but as our population is increasing, the mean age of the dying in a limited time is 11·5 years less than the mean lifetime. The mean age of the population of England was 26·4 years in 1851, instead of 32·1 years; so the excess of young people reduces the age of the nation by 5·7 years, or by half the difference $\left(= \frac{11 \cdot 5}{2}\right)$ between the age at death (29·4) and the mean lifetime (40·9). Instead of living as long as they have lived (26·4 years), they will live about 35·6 years ($= E_{26 \cdot 4}$).

* The Numbers in this Table of PERSONS are the sums of the corresponding numbers in the Tables of MALES and FEMALES, pp. lxxviii-ix and lxxxii-lxxxiii.

† In the English Life Tables No. 1. and No. 2., $P_x$ was put in the form proposed by Mr. Griffith

YEARLY TABLE :—PERSONS.

| AGE | DYING in each year of age 0–1, 1–2, &c, | BORN, and LIVING at each age. | SUM of the NUMBERS BORN, and LIVING at each age ($x$), and from age $x$ to the last age in the Table. | POPULATION, or the LIVING in each year of age 0–1, 1–2, &c. | (1) SUM of the LIVING of every age $x$ and upwards to the last Age in the Table; also (2) the YEARS which the Persons ($l_x$) WILL LIVE. | (1) The YEARS which the Persons at the age $x$ and upwards WILL LIVE; also, (2) the years which they HAVE LIVED over $x$. | AGE |

Davies, $= \frac{1}{2}(l_x + l_{x+1}) = l_{x+1} + \frac{1}{2} d_x$; but in this series of Tables it has been calculated directly, and, except in the single case of $P_0$, represents the numbers living in the middle of each year of age ($= l_{x+\frac{1}{2}}$). $P_0$ is the arithmetical mean of the series $l_0, l_{\frac{1}{12}}, l_{\frac{2}{12}}, \ldots\ldots l_1$.

* In the English Life Tables No. 1 and No. 2, $P_x$ was put in the form proposed by Mr. Griffith Davies, $=\frac{1}{2}(l_x + l_{x+1}) = l_{x+1} + \frac{1}{2}d_x$; but in this series of Tables it has been calculated directly, and, except in the single case of $P_0$, represents the numbers living in the middle of each year of

* In the English Life Tables No. 1 and No. 2, $P_x$ was put in the form proposed by Mr. Griffith Davies, $= \frac{1}{2}(l_x + l_{x+1}) = l_{x+1} + \frac{1}{2}d_x$; but in this series of Tables it has been calculated directly, and, except in the single case of $P_0$, represents the numbers living in the middle of each year of

* The Registration Counties consist of groups of entire Registration Districts; which Districts are, in general, identical with the Poor Law Unions. As the principle adopted has been to place a District or Union which extends into more than one County with the County in which either the principal town or the greater part of the population is located, the limits of the Registration Counties differ more or less from the boundaries of the Counties proper.

† Where the parties to a marriage are of different religious persuasions it sometimes happens that the ceremony is performed according to the rites of both persuasions: in these cases the two ceremonies are entered as two marriages. This column also includes 48 cases of marriage after divorce, viz., 23 divorced men who married spinsters, 4 divorced men who married widows, 17 bachelors who married divorced women, 3 widowers who married divorced women, and 1 divorced man who married a divorced woman. For the districts in which these marriages took place see subsequent pages.

* In the other 65,082 cases the column of the Register headed "Age" is filled in by the Officiating Minister or by the Registrar of Marriages with the words "of full Age," "Minor," "Under Age," as the case may be; thus losing the additional means of identification afforded by a precise statement of the age of persons at the time of marriage.

* The Registration Counties consist of groups of entire Registration Districts; which Districts are, in general, identical with the Poor Law Unions. As the principle adopted has been to place a District or Union which extends into more than one County with the County in which either the principal town or the greater part of the population is located, the limits of the Registration Counties differ more or less from the boundaries of the Counties proper.

† Some of the births—especially of illegitimate children in London and large towns—escape registration.

* The Districts are collections of contiguous Parishes or Places combined for purposes connected with the Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages; and are generally identical with the Poor Law Unions of the same names. The Districts, 641 in number, are arranged according to their local position under the Registration Counties. The presence of Institutions in any District is indicated in this column of the Table by H for Hospital or Infirmary, L for Lunatic Asylum, and w for Workhouse situated out of the District to which it belongs; and repetitions of these letters show the number of such Institutions in any District. The smaller Institutions are not noticed.

† For a table of the Deaths in the principal Public Institutions situated in the Districts of London see pages 83–4.

‡ Wherever the minus sign is prefixed to the number in the column headed "Excess of Births over Deaths," it denotes that the Births in the District, instead of exceeding the Deaths, were, in fact, less than the Deaths to the extent stated.

* The Sub-districts are sub-divisions of the Districts, and comprise the Parishes or Places in which the Births and Deaths are registered by Registrars severally appointed for that purpose. The letter W denotes that the Sub-district contains within its limits a Workhouse belonging to the District or Union; w indicates that a Workhouse belonging to another District or Union is included; H indicates Hospital or Infirmary; and L Lunatic Asylum.

† For the number of Deaths in the Hospitals, Workhouses, and other principal Public Institutions in London. see pp. 83-4.

‡ Wherever the minus sign (−) is prefixed to the numbers given in the Column headed "Excess of Births over Deaths," it denotes that the Births in the Sub-district, instead of exceeding the Deaths, were, in fact, less than the Deaths to the extent stated. The Excess of Deaths over Births in several of the Sub-districts of London is attributable to the mortality in Hospitals.

ENGLAND.—SUPPLEMENTARY TABLE of the

[The principles upon which the Causes of Death are tabled have been explained in previous Annual Reports. It will be sufficient to state now that all the Diseases, either having a distinct character, or fatal to any considerable number of persons, are classified under 114 heads; some of which, however, include groups of very distinct diseases,—such as are fatal to only a few persons, or diseases which are often confounded with other diseases. The rule has been to refer the distinct diseases to heads under which the cases were so numerous, that the additional numbers would not interfere with the calculated proportions. Where it is desired, partial correction, however, can now be made by means of the following Supplementary Tables, containing many of the deaths from distinct diseases, such as chicken-pox, mumps, epistaxis, dry gangrene, polypus, rickets, bronchocele, &c. &c., and deaths from other forms of disease, such as softening of the brain (necrencephalus), which are returned in many cases under other heads, as paralysis, &c.

CAUSES of DEATH at different Periods of Life, in the Year 1865.

These Tables are an extension of the Tables of Causes of Death in England, pp. 120–125.]

*NOTE.—In calculating the average annual rate of mortality from all causes in London, a correction has been made by distributing the deaths in hospitals proportionally over every district. The second rate of mortality (in figures of different character) is the result of a further correction,—in Chelsea and Greenwich for the Military and Naval Hospitals, in Wandsworth for the County Lunatic Asylum, and in the other London Districts for Workhouses situated out of the Districts to which they belong.

In all the other Districts of England the second rate of mortality is the result of a correction for either a Naval or Military Hospital or Camp, a County Lunatic Asylum or a Workhouse situated out of the District to which it belongs. The particulars of these corrections are given in the Supplement to the 25th Report, pp. xl-lviii.

Population 1861, Average Annual Rate of Mortality from All Causes in the Ten Years 1851-60, and Deaths from several Causes in the Year 1865, in the Districts of England—continued.

Letter to the Registrar General on the Causes of Death in England, by William Farr, Esq., M.D., F.R.S.

Year 1865.

Sir,

I have the honour to submit to you some observations on the causes of death, and on the health of the people, during the year.

It is shown in your Report that the mortality was higher than the average, and that males, who at all times die at a faster rate than females, suffered in this year to an unusual extent.

The higher rate of mortality is due mainly to the prevalence of diarrhœa and of fever, to bronchitis, to mechanical injuries, and to the affections of infancy.

Common cholera was more fatal than it had been for some time, and the diarrhœa was, it may be, premonitory of the epidemic eruption to follow in the year 1866. The water supply of rivers is constantly deteriorating by the impurities thrown into their streams, and the wells of cities become more tainted so as to be the channels of zymotic exciters of such diseases as diarrhœa, cholera, and typhia (typhoid fever).

The deaths of the year were 490,909. Of this number in 8400 instances no causes whatever were assigned, although about 3173 of the number having been sudden were inquired into by the coroners. The circumstances to which these defects are due were discussed in the appendix to your last Report, as well as the serious defects in many of the other returns of specified causes.

The conversion of the forces of life into other forces at death takes place in so many ways, and under conditions so unfavourable to observation, as often to baffle inquiry, and to render it difficult, if not impossible, to refer the phenomena to laws. But no means of making the inquiry successful should be neglected, and among those means the securing of well selected observers, acting under systematic rules, is the most important.

I.—Zymotic Diseases.

The class is typified by small-pox, which has this property, that in its course a certain matter is generated in the body going through a series of transformations capable of inducing, under certain conditions, similar changes in other bodies. This matter may be called varioline, as the lymph of cow-pox may be called vaccinine.

The grounds of the nomenclature were stated in the appendix to your Fourth Report (1842), where it will be seen that the name given to the cholera poison is cholerine, which I have subsequently written cholrine, to avoid the confusion of the name of this stuff with that by which the French have sometimes designated choleraic diarrhœa.*

The cholrine is contained in the characteristic rice-water evacuations, and in the dry state of dust or dissolved in water it is capable of reproducing cholera in a certain proportion of the people, to whose mucous membranes it, in any way, gains access.

* Fourth Report, pp. 199–202, 1842.

Dysentery and typhia (typhoid fever) are probably propagated in the same way, through air or water, by matters that for the sake of convenience may, as was before proposed, be termed enterine and typhianine.

Modified forms of these bodies produce various kinds of diarrhœas.

The propagation of cholera in this fashion in water as a medium is only a particular case of the zymotic doctrine, and, like typhia and dysentery, cholera serves as a type of those forms of disease which are communicable through a fluid secretion with properties as specific, but not as constant, as hydrophobic saliva.

The deaths by cholera in the year were 1291, by diarrhœa 23,531; and it deserves notice that the deaths have risen to this pitch from 327 by cholera, and 9702 by diarrhœa, in the year 1860. It will be recollected that cholera raged epidemically in Paris, Marseilles, and the other cities of the continent, while the slight increase was observed in this country.

The deaths by cholera in London were 196, chiefly occurring in Kensington, Pancras, Islington, Hackney, Shoreditch and Bethnal Green, Mile End Old Town, Lambeth, Wandsworth, and Camberwell. Of the 142 deaths by cholera in the south-eastern division 22 occurred in Portsea Island, 35 in Southampton and South Stoneham. In the districts of the south-midland and the eastern counties isolated cases occurred, but in West Ham 10, in Epping 8, deaths were recorded, in the latter district under peculiar circumstances which were investigated by Mr. Radcliffe. 6 deaths by cholera in Plymouth, 7 in Stoke-upon-Trent, 15 in Birmingham and Aston districts, 8 in Lincoln, 14 in Basford and Radford, and 5 in Nottingham, sounded the alarm in these districts; but in the north-western division (Lancashire and Cheshire) 323 deaths by cholera were registered, in the West Riding of Yorkshire 133. In Liverpool, Ormskirk, Bolton, Manchester, Burnley, and Preston, Huddersfield, Halifax, Bradford, and Sheffield, the greater part of the deaths by cholera occurred, and there was a very large number of deaths by diarrhœa. 62 deaths by cholera occurred in Durham, 33 in Northumberland. In South Shields 14, and in Newcastle-upon-Tyne 14 deaths by cholera were recorded. In Cumberland, Westmorland, Monmouthshire, and Wales only a few cases of cholera were registered. The deaths from diarrhœa were numerous in Monmouthshire and Glamorganshire, in Wrexham and Carnarvon.

Fever increased in fatality; by its three forms the deaths which were 13,012 in the year 1860 rose to 23,034. The typhoid form (typhia) is apparently propagated in the same way as cholera, and, like it, directs attention to the increased impurity of some of the sources of water-supply. Typhus is propagated by overcrowding and dirt.

3213 deaths by fever occurred in London, 5580 in Lancashire and Cheshire, and 2812 in Yorkshire. Five-tenths of the deaths were registered among four-tenths of the population. Among the town districts the following were considerable sufferers: Croydon, Southampton, Yarmouth, Norwich, Bristol, Wolverhampton, Walsall, West Bromwich, Dudley, and Stourbridge, Birmingham, Stockport, Liverpool, Wigan, Bolton, Bury, Chorlton, Salford, Manchester, Rochdale, Blackburn, Preston, Huddersfield, Halifax, Bradford, Leeds, Dewsbury, Sheffield, Rotherham, Hull, Stockton, Sunderland, South Shields, Gateshead, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Whitehaven, Merthyr Tydfil, and several of the districts of Glamorganshire and Monmouthshire. 10 deaths from erysipelas after vaccination in infancy are recorded. 83 persons—44 males, 39 females—died of mumps.

In the enthetic order there is a marked increase in the deaths referred to syphilis, but as the syphiline sets up actions which affect various organs, and gives rise to diseases referred to other classes, it is possible that the increase under this head is the result of greater accuracy in the returns; of 822 males dying from this cause 612 were infants under five years of age; 23 were 20 and under 25; 44 were 25–35; 36 were 35–45; 43 were 45–75; while of the 825 females 543 were infants, 11 were girls of 15–20; 42 were 20–25; 71 were 25–35; 49 were 35–45; only 20 were of the age of 45 and upwards. Whether the means have been successful that have been recently adopted to prevent the more extensive diffusion of this pernicious affection future returns will show.

Hydrophobia was the cause of an unusual number of deaths; of it 15 males and 4 females died. The difference in the proportions of the sexes is probably due to the greater exposure of men to the bites of rabid dogs in the streets. Nearly the same excess in the proportion of men killed by lightning is observed; and this also is due to their out-door life, while women suffer from the diseases of confinement. Four men died of glanders. It is now found that horses as well as dogs communicate some of their diseases to men. Malignant pustule caused 3 deaths. Dietic diseases are fatal in various ways. 74 deaths are ascribed directly to privation. 1049 deaths are recorded by alcoholism, 612 in the form of delirium tremens, and 437 in other forms distinguished only as intemperance. 87 deaths from rickets, 42 from bronchocele, are returned.

The want of breast milk is the recorded cause of 1410 deaths. Purpura and scurvy are increasing; they affect persons of both sexes at all ages. The deaths, which in 1856 were 227, amounted to 424.

Parasitic diseases are still to some extent fatal in England; but such cases as scabies, although most disagreeable, are rarely fatal. The deaths of 1 boy and 6 girls are ascribed to scabies, which was probably complicated with some other affection. Of tape-worm 5 children died, of hydatid of liver 17, of trichina spiralis 1 (see pp. 126–7). The deaths from worms of all kinds were 183. Of thrush 1244 people, nearly all infants, died.

II.—Constitutional Diseases.

These diseases have this in common with zymotic diseases that they are diffusive; they work changes in several parts of the organism, and it has recently been shown by Villemin* that human tubercle is, even when introduced by inoculation, capable of inducing tubercular deposits in the organs of animals. These experiments have been repeated and the results are decisive. The prevalence of phthisis in the armies of Europe is probably due in part to the inhalation of expectorated tubercular matter, dried, broken up into dust, and floating in the air of close barracks. To test this may be difficult, but the origin and propagation of the most fatal of all human diseases deserves full investigation. The inquiry should also extend to cancer and the other constitutional diseases, among which should perhaps now be included diabetes. It is not easy to ascertain how diabetes is set up in the system, and it is still more difficult to learn the action of the diabetic elements on the blood of other organisms.

Gout was fatal in 361 instances, and the deaths from this cause increase every year. In the year 1856 they amounted to 260, and it is quite certain that few of its victims belonged to the selected classes—to the magni reges, dynastæ exercituum, classiumque duces, philosophi, aliique his similes. Yet gout has infected some of the ablest men in England, and there is perhaps some connexion between the phosphorus abounding in the brain and the excess of phosphoric acid in the blood of the gouty before a paroxysm. There is this peculiarity in gout: it is five times as common in men as in women, and it is very rarely fatal in either men or women under five-and-thirty years of age. The greatest number of deaths (of 96 men, of 19 women by gout) occurs at the ages of 65–75.

Unlike gout dropsy is most fatal to women, and at the corresponding age 65–75 the greatest number of deaths by dropsy occurs (of men 668, of women 1099). Dropsy is a secondary affection in heart disease, and accompanies some affections of the kidney, but can only be by pure conjecture held to be in all cases a symptom of these or of some other organic disease. This substitution of dropsy in women for gout in men after the age of 45 is well worthy of the attention of pathologists. Cancer is more than twice as fatal to women as it is to men. In the first twenty-five years of life there is an excess of deaths among boys, probably from soft cancer; at 25–35, when the reproductive organs are fully developed, the disease grows more fatal, and of it 77 men, 281 women, die; at 35–45 the deaths rise to 240 and 812; at 45–55 there is a further rise to 459 and 1504; and then while the number of deaths, but not the mortality, from cancer declines, the disproportion between the deaths of the two sexes is diminished.

The 53,734 deaths by phthisis of persons, the greater part of them adults, prove the great importance of a careful study of the causes of this disease. At the age of 20 and under 25 the deaths of young women from all specified causes were 8477, and of these 4290 died of phthisis.

The mortality by all constitutional diseases is rather less than it was in the ten years 1850–9, and this is partly due to the decrease of the number of deaths referred to phthisis.

III.—Local Diseases.

The whole of the inflammations and the functional diseases of organs fall under this head. The deaths so classed amounted to 184,877; the deaths to every 1000 living being 9 out of the 23 by all causes.

The diseases of the nervous system were fatal in 60,264 cases, including 10,215 deaths by apoplexy, 10,693 by paralysis, 88 by chorea, which is increasing, 2468 by epilepsy (including 26 by hysteria), and 26,722 by convulsions. The 558 deaths by insanity do not include all the deaths of the insane, who are liable to die of consumption and many other diseases. 5 deaths are referred to fright, 3 to grief, and 43 to melancholy. Among brain diseases is one that has increased rapidly of late years, namely, necrencephalus or softening of the brain, to which the deaths of 1051 males, 627 females are referred. These deaths would formerly have been classed under paralysis and other heads.

The diseases of the eye and ear are seldom fatal. 36 deaths are referred to ophthalmia, 92 to otitis, 29 to tetanus; 1 young woman died of sea sickness, and 1 of catalepsy. Chorea is almost three times as fatal to females (64), as it is to males (24).

The 22,272 deaths by diseases of the circulating system include 499 deaths by aneurism.

The respiratory organs are so essential to life that their diseases are extraordinarily fatal. 36,428 persons died of bronchitis, 22,489 of pneumonia. While the deaths referred to pneumonia have remained stationary those ascribed to bronchitis have rapidly increased.

Epistaxis was the cause of 54 deaths in this class.

21,774 deaths are referred to diseases of the digestive organs. Besides those diseases in the general table the supplemental list (pp. 126–9) contains several particulars of interest. Of hæmatemesis 170 males, 131 females died; of melæna 73 males, 54 females. Of cirrhosis, among liver diseases, 457 males, 275 females died. Thus it will be seen that the hæmorrhages, as well as the hardening of the liver, were most common in males.

The deaths referred to diseases of the urinary organs have increased in number; they amounted to 6274. While deaths by stone fell from 233 in 1856 to 189, deaths from all the other affections increased. Diabetes ran up from 433 in the year 1856 to 669. The diagnosis of these diseases has been very much facilitated in recent years by the applications of chemical analysis.

Ovarian dropsy was fatal to fewer women by 50 than died of it in the previous year; the deaths in the two years were 259 and 209.

Of the diseases of the skin, exclusive of phlegmon and ulcer, only 363 persons died; 136 by eczema, 25 by pemphigus, 19 by impetigo, 28 by psoriasis, 12 by lepra, and 12 by elephantiasis.

IV.—Developmental Diseases.

Many infants are born prematurely; the numbers born alive and so registered were 8,791. Of cyanosis, the blue disease, 483 children died; and of these 2 males lived to the age of 25 and 2 females to the age of 55. Spina-bifida, of which 377 died, is sooner fatal; nearly all the sufferers die in the first year of life; yet one man is said to have lived to the age of 25–35, and then to have died of spina-bifida. Anus imperforatus and cleft palate were the other fatal forms of malformation.

Of paramenia 86 women died between the ages of 10 and 65.

Childbearing women are subject to the same diseases as other women of their age. A pregnant woman may take small-pox, and in that state it is generally fatal. Thus 59 parturient women died of small-pox, 16 of scarlatina, 39 of typhus or typhia, 30 of diarrhœa, 5 of cholera, 4 of rheumatism; 4 died of cancer, 98 of phthisis, 7 of apoplexy, 4 of paralysis, 7 of epilepsy, 44 of heart disease, 33 of bronchitis, 39 of pneumonia, 12 of nephria, 3 of disease of uterus. Besides 1333 deaths by metria (puerperal fever), and 2490 ascribed to childbirth, 490 women died of specific diseases complicated by parturition either of stillborns or of liveborn children. The specific disease and the delivery are recorded in 490 instances. 11 women dying of diseases are stated in the registers to have been pregnant.

As 748,069 children were born in the year, and as pregnancy lasts three quarters of a year, 561,000 parturient women exist in the population constantly; and as they are on an average about 32 years of age, the deaths among them at the average rate (·011) would be 6171. But of that number 3823 deaths are directly referred to metria or to childbirth, leaving as a residue 2348; of which our table accounts only for 490. Probably the early puerperal stages are not recognized in the medical certificates. Probably also the class of mothers belongs to what in a certain sense the insurance offices call select lives.

Under the third Order of the developmental class of diseases 12,320 men, 16,389 women, of 60 and upwards, are returned as dying of old age. 154 of the men, 402 of the women, were of the age of 95 and upwards.

32,161 persons died of atrophy and debility; but of that number 22,436 were infants under one year of age. This is exclusive of 8791 infants dying after premature birth.

V. Violent Deaths.

17,374 persons died by this class of causes; and on referring to the Orders we find that 15,232 of them died of accidents, or in consequence of negligences of various kinds, 443 of homicide, 1392 of suicide, and 6 of public execution for some of the murders under Order 3. The deaths in this class have increased from 13,902 to 17,374 in nine years, or from 14,151 in the year 1858 to 17,374 in the year 1865. The deaths to 10,000 of the population were 7·34 in 1858 and 8·35 in 1865; thus the population has increased, but the deaths by violence have increased in a still faster ratio. It is gratifying to find that neither suicide nor executions have increased; but homicide has slightly increased ever since the year 1862.

Nearly the whole of the increase of violent deaths is due to the order of accidents, and chiefly to accidents from mechanical violence. The number of deaths by fractures and contusions in the year 1858 was 5159, in 1859 5482, and in the last two years 1864–5 the deaths from such causes were 6500 and 6843! This is partly due to the great increase in the mechanical forces in action in the country, and to the want of a corresponding increase in the means of protection against their destructive application. In a country village, where wild animals have been exterminated, the violent deaths are rare, and are caused by domestic animals in the service of man, by threshing machines, or by gravitation. A far higher degree of danger is encountered in the streets of London, where children, women, old people, and even vigorous men, are killed weekly by horses and carriages of various kinds. Mining has peculiar dangers of its own. The deaths of females by fractures and contusions were 1017, of males 5826.

The deaths by burns and scalds are 2713: they are more numerous in females than in males, chiefly owing to the combustibility of women's dresses. Through increased care they are declining, still at every age the number is excessive. (Table 21.)

By poisoning 180 men and 93 women died accidentally; by drowning 2427 men, 396 women; by suffocation 785 men, 524 women.

In this class the deaths are directly referred to their external causes; but these causes give rise in many instances to peculiar intervening processes which belong to the same order of phenomena as the diseases of the other classes, themselves often the result of unspecified external agents. Thus oxalic acid gives rise to several series of morbid actions depending on the dose; and so does arsenic. These groups of phenomena I have named oxalia and arsenicia. And by the same analogy the diseases of other poisons may be named. A burn is a chemical injury by the external agency of fire, and is named strictly in conformity with the rule above suggested; so is scald. Drowning is a name of an intermediate character: not referring nominally to water, as it might be occasioned by immersion in any liquid, nor to the condition of asphyxia resulting from the exclusion of fresh air. It describes dying under given conditions. So does suffocation. Erysipelas and pyæmia are frequent results of mechanical injury.

Suicide is a crime undoubtedly more common than it would be if the instruments of its commission were less accessible. Poison in the cup, the razor in the hand, the pistol within reach, have in moments of despair drawn many down this precipice. 56 men, 2 women, killed themselves by gunshot wounds; 202 men, 50 women, by cuts and stabs; 70 men, 65 women, by poison; 121 men, 109 women, by drowning in the glassy water: 487 men, 104 women, hanged themselves.

More males than females are reported to have been killed by homicides: the number of males being 269, of females 174; including 86 boys, 97 girls, under 1 year of age. It will be seen by Tables 18, 19, that of the 269 males killed 127 are returned as murders, 142 as manslaughter; while of the 174 females 125 are returned as murders, 49 only as manslaughter. Infanticide is mentioned as the cause of death of 37 males, 46 females; but in many of the cases the way in which murder or manslaughter is wrought does not appear.

Besides force, chemical action, and heat, lightning is another agent of death. 19 persons were killed by lightning: none in London, none in the divisions south of the Thames; 2 in the South Midland Division, 3 in the Eastern, 2 in the West Midland, 7 in the North Midland, 1 in Lancashire, and 4 in Yorkshire. All except 3 were men, and chiefly labourers in the open air.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your very obedient servant,
WILLIAM FARR.

NOTE.—I think it deserving of record here that the Rinderpest or cattle plague, or, as there are many kinds of cattle plague—to give it a specific name—Bovia (from bos, bovis, βοῦς), broke out in England during this year. Its first appearance and its diffusion are thus described in Mr. Clode's interesting Report:

"The first outbreak of the disease was reported in the Metropolis during the last week in June 1865; it spread with great rapidity and reached several of the most distant counties in the two following months.

"The 139 attacks on 4 different premises, reported in the week ending 1st July 1865, indicated that a formidable malady was establishing itself; in the week following 14 other premises became infected, and the attacks amounted to 639. The disease then increased to 1,203 in the week ending 19th August 1865, and to 1,596 in that ending 30th September. From the end of October the virulence of the plague became still more manifest, week by week, and in the last 7 days of the year 1865 as many as 10,107 cattle were reported to have been attacked, and 1,236 farms, &c. were added to those previously infected.

"In the first eight weeks of the year 1866 the plague assumed its greatest proportions, and the maximum number of attacks were reported for the week ending 24th February, when as many as 17,875 cattle contracted the disease."

† Order 2, comprising Violent Deaths in Battle, is omitted, as inapplicable to the civil population.

‡ The number of persons executed in the several years will not necessarily correspond with those in the same years of the "Criminal Returns," inasmuch as the executions recorded in each year in the latter are derived from the dates of conviction, while the numbers in this Table are classed under the years in which the deaths are registered.

§ The cases of angina membranacea which would now be put to diphtheria were formerly classed under the same head as scarlatina, but were distinguished in the notes.

† Up to the year 1857 cases of so called "debility" and "premature birth" were classed together; when the new classification was introduced "premature birth" was kept apart, and "debility" and "atrophy" were thrown into one line. This accounts for the changes in the table numbers.

* The Mean Annual Mortality in the 15 years from All Causes and from Specified Causes is the mean of the three quinquennial periods, does not correspond exactly with the totals of the Orders and Classes; because under certain heads, for example, Homicide, Suicide, and Cau not specified, &c., the result is derived from the deaths not of 15 years but only of portions of that period.

† Order 2, comprising Violent Deaths in Battle, is omitted, as inapplicable to the civil population.

INDEX OF DISTRICTS.

[The following Index furnishes a reference to the Number of each DISTRICT in the topographical arrangement adopted in the Tables of Abstracts contained in the Report, the numbers running consecutively from 1 to 623.* In forming the alphabetical arrangement the principle is adopted of placing compound names in the order in which they are pronounced: thus, East Ashford will be found under the letter E, and not under A, as Ashford, East.]

INDEX OF SUB-DISTRICTS.

[In this alphabetical arrangement the principle is adopted of placing the Sub-Districts (or Registrars' Districts) having compound names in the order indicated by the usual pronunciation of those names; thus, East Grinstead will be found under the letter E, and not under G as "Grinstead, East;" St. James under the letter S, and not as "James, St." The number against each Sub-District, in the third column, refers to the order in which it appears in the arrangement of the Districts in the Tables of Abstracts; thus, Abbey Holme (569; 2) is the 2d Sub-District of the Wigton District, No. 569.]
